Medill McCormick
A Chance for Congress
Gold, Yellow and Cold
The Baby Crop

By Arthur Brisbane

MEDILL McCORMICK, who died suddenly yesterday, was an exceptionally able, brilliant man. He inherited through his mother the genius of his grandfather, Joseph Medill, and especially the latter's newspaper talent.

BEFORE HE LEFT newspaper work for politics, Medill McCormick, although a very young man, showed extraordinary newspaper ability and energy. He was a newspaper editor of the early American type, thin, keen, concentrated, knowing what news is, how to tell it, and how to impress himself on public affairs.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, it's said, means to veto the increased salaries for Congressmen. The total amounts to $1,876,000 a year.

The salaries are not high. Congressmen cannot live decently at Washington and at home on today's wages.

CONGRESS COULD EARN the increase in five minutes by creating a great irrigation and power plant at Boulder Canyon on the Colorado River. That project to irrigate two million acres of desert land, supply continuously 600,000 horsepower and protect the Imperial Valley from floods would pay the Congressmen's increased salaries ten thousand times every year and leave enough over to pay for the dam.

MR. F. B. KELLOGG, retiring as Ambassador to Great Britain, will be welcomed home as Secretary of State by all who like a genuine American of old-fashioned type.

MR. KELLOGG is cheerful about Europe and says the world is returning to the gold standard. The world knows little about money. Professional financiers, as Bernard Shaw says, know even less than anybody else. But gold, "yellow and cold," for which men struggled, searched, dug, and killed each other five thousand years ago, still retains its power.

And this country has most of the gold. That is one reason why Europe doesn't like us.

ONE IMPORTANT PROOF of booming prosperity. In New York, our biggest city, the rush to get married before Lent comes exceeds all records. Not fewer than fifty couples have been standing in line, all day, waiting for licenses.

This guarantees most important of all OUR CROPS. The crop of native born babies, on which the country and the future depend. The only real wealth is human intelligence. The mothers create it.

NEAR MORLAIX, in Brittany, fire destroys a famous religious shrine, dating back six hundred years. The church, called "St. John of The Finger," was thus named because the relic from which it derived its power was a finger of John the Baptist.

THE RELIQUARY with the sacred finger was saved fortunately, also another treasure almost as precious, one of the sacred vessels made by Benvenuto Cellini.

You admire the power of faith revealed in the fact that the worshippers are not shaken by the fact that fire, destroying the old church, was caused by a stroke of lightning, and thus, practically, by an agency of divine power. Such a man as the late Ingersoll would have found material for unpleasant comment there.

HAVE YOU a little domestic servant problem? Read these figures: Between 1910 and 1920 United States population increased 15 per cent., and the number of domestic servants, cooks, chambermaids, etc., diminished 25 per cent. Moral: Be grateful for what you have.

ANOTHER MORAL, according to F. Schneider, Jr., learned financial editor, is: "Buy public utility stocks." Fewer servants must mean more electric sweepers, washing machines, etc., and therefore more current used. The servant problem reaches all over the world. Englishmen have to live in little

YOUNG POISON CASE COUPLE ADOPTED 'MYSTERY' INFANT

The mother of the mystery baby born in the Newton home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Miles, Jr., the former Boston University law student, was found today by the Boston Evening American.

The couple were found unconscious from poisoning.

She si Miss Minnie Willett, twenty-year-old Waltham factory girl, to whom, according to Newton City Hall birth records, a baby was born in the Miles home on last October 30.

The baby, according to the girl's mother, Mrs. Alonzo Willett of No. 76 Oak street, Waltham, was delivered by Dr. Alfred Butler of Waltham street, Boston, who has an office in Watertown.

Following the birth, the baby was taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Miles who had advertised in a Boston newspaper that they wished to adopt a young child.

Later, however, when Minnie Millett, who lives with her grandfather, W. L. Haley, in Lexington street, Waltham, telephoned the Miles home in Newton to inquire as to the health of her baby, she was told by Mrs. Miles, that the baby had been placed in a home.

Still later, in another telephone call, according to Minnie's mother, the girl was told by Mrs. Miles that the baby had died. This was not be-

NAVY PLOT CHARGED BY WIFE OF OFFICER

Washington, Feb. 26.—Court-martial proceedings against Lieutenant Frank E. Kennedy, now confined, in the State Hospital for the Insane at Napa, Cal., will be pressed, if he is found to be sane, it is said at the Navy Department.

San Francisco, Feb. 26.—The United States attorney here will represent the Navy Department Monday when a writ of habeas corpus seeking the release of Lieutenant Frank E. Kennedy from the Napa Hospital for the Insane, is argued before the Superior Court.

Lieutenant Kennedy was sent to the hospital without a formal commitment after he had been suspended by Lieutenant R. W. Christie, commander of the Submarine S-17, who filed charges of unofficerlike conduct against him at Manila, Naval records show. Kennedy was not tried, but sent to Napa from the Mare Island Navy Yard.

WILLIAM M. WOOD IS REPORTED DYING

Shawsheen Village, Feb. 26.—William M. Wood, founder and for twenty-five years president of the American Woolen Company, who resigned last December, was today reported to be dying in Florida.

It was understood that word to that effect was received by officials of the Woolen Company here.

Mr. Wood, whose resignation was said to have been due to ill health, went to a Florida resort shortly after severing his connection with the company which he made world famous. His resignation was followed a short time later by that of his son, Cornelius, as vice-president.

AGED COUPLE SAVED AT SO. BOSTON FIRE

An aged man and his wife were rescued and six families driven to the street when fire of undetermined origin broke out today in the four-story brick structure at No. 30 Broadway, South Boston.

William Bells and his wife Frances, suffering from smoke in halation, were taken to the street by Traffic Officer John Sullivan and Patrolman John Stabinsky.

The two policemen also assisted the other occupants of the house to safety after Sullivan, who was on duty at Broadway and Dorchester avenue, had discovered the fire.

There is a restaurant on the first floor of the building and tenements above. Sullivan saw smoke issuing from the top floor windows and, accompanied by Stabinsky, ran into the house and notified the occupants on the second and third floors.

The two policemen then went to the top floor where they found Mrs. Bells and her husband and took them to safety.

The fire caused damage estimated at several thousand dollars.

PALL OF DARKNESS PRESAGES A STORM

The recent eclipse, Black Friday and other phenomena were brought to mind this afternoon when a pall of darkness descended on Boston, turning day into night.

The superstitious were inclined to view conditions as a preliminary to the end of the world, but according to the justly celebrated weather man it was the opening act of a spell of weather.

The weather man said that a rush of cold air from the fastnesses of Medicine Hat, or wherever it hangs out when not visiting New England, forced down the clouds and caused the wind to shift. It spun around from southwest to west, and then to northwest, with the probability of its increasing to gale force.

Storm warnings are out from the Virginia Capes north, the barometer is dropping, and much colder weather is expected. The darkness lasted only a few minutes in Boston.

ADRIATIC, WITH 400 ABOARD, RUNS AGROUND

New York, Feb. 26.—The steamship Adriatic, with 400 passengers aboard for a Mediterranean cruise, piled up on a mud flat in the harbor two hours after she had been warped out of her pier at 1 o'clock this morning. Four tugs worked four hours before she could be floated. The Adriatic was anchored off Staten Island until the fog lifted to permit her to proceed seaward.

BOYS DISCOVER LONGMISSING TABLET

teriously disappeared from its place in William J. Barry playground, Charlestown, has been returned.

Two boys, whose names are unknown, called at Station 16, Charlestown, today and presented Captain Michael Goff with the tablet.

On June 17, 1922, the old Mystic playground was changes to the James J. Barry playground in honor of James J. Barry of the One Hundred and First Infantry, who was killed in action at St. Mihiel. On the same day this tablet was placed on the side of the custodian's building.

About three months ago the playground was enlarged. The custodian's building was moved and the tablet disappeared.

An investigation was started by James C. Barry, uncle of the hero and a member of the Legion Welfare committee at the State House, assisted by three men from Bunker Hill Post No. 26, American Legion.

The boys said they were playing along the water's edge at the park and found the memorial inbeded in the mud.

FALLS TO FLOOR AS JURY HOLDS WIZARD GUILTY OF LARCENY

After years of prosecution in the State courts, Charles Ponzi was today convicted of larceny in fourteen counts on four indictments involving $9,500, by a Suffolk Superior Court jury.

Ponzi was charged with the larceny of $800 from Amato Cataldo, $800 from James J. Ashe, $2,200 from Louis Bercelli, $3,900 from Virginia Prestininnizi and $2,000 from Fitz W. Bodenstab. The amounts involved in these cases were split, in the indictment, into fourteen separate charges of larceny.

In two previous trials the one-time financial wizard was acquitted once while the jury disagreed in the other case. He had previously been found guilty in the Federal court of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, and served a sentence in Plymouth Jail.

Proceedings are pending to deport Ponzi on the ground he is in the United States illegally.

In the latest prosecution, conduct-

HAVERHILL CLERK INJURED BY BOMB

Haverhill, Feb. 26.—Explosion of a bomb sent through the mail to Matthew J. Fowler, one of the city's most prominent citizens and leader of the citizens' committee, which has been trying to bring about industrial peace here, today slightly injured a clerk in Fowler's optical store at No. 171 Merrimack street.

Although the package was marked "personal," the clerk opened it. He was probably saved from serious injury or death by the fact that the entire charge of explosive was not ignited.

A rat trap was the unusual device employed to discharge the bomb. Two cent pieces also figured in the mechanism of the queer infernal machine. The entire contrivance was about seven inches long and two inches high.

State and city police were notified and an explosive expert was dispatched from the department of public safety at the State House to investigate.

As one of the citizens' committee, composed of seven members, including clergymen and leading business men, Fowler has been active in promoting and protecting Haverhill industries. He has taken a leading part in trying to iron out the differences between shoe manufacturers and their employes.

LA FOLLETTE FIGHTS G. O. P. IN THE COURTS

Washington, Feb. 26.—The Federal courts will be called upon to determine the legality of the ouster order drafted by the Republican leadership of the Senate against the La Follette insurgent bloc.

The La Follette insurgent group is contemplating an appeal to the courts for a writ of injunction as a defence move against the ouster proceedings. In the face of this threat the Republican Committee on Committees is going ahead with plans to bar the insurgents from all further senatorial service as Republicans by depriving them of majority committee assignments.

GERMAN PRESIDENT ILL, NEAR DEATH

Berlin, Feb. 26 (A.P.).—President Ebert, who underwent an operation Tuesday morning for appendicitis, has developed peritonitis.

The President's physicians this forenoon issued a bulletin which read:

"The President suddenly fell ill at noon on February 23 with a severe case of appendicitis which necessitated an operation that night. Despite the fact that the operation was undertaken soon after the illness developed, the appendix was found badly inflamed and partially punctured, so that peritonitis developed.

"The course of the illness was satisfactory until last night but, as often happens on the third day, the peritonitis became worse last evening so that the President spent an uneasy night.

"This morning his condition was improved, but was still serious."

HUB PILGRIM SHIP IS AT GIBRALTAR

CREATOR OF MULLIGAN RELIEVED BY EXPOSE OF HOAX

BRINE, HOWEVER, DECLINES TO REVEAL WHERE HE OBTAINED OFFICIAL KEY

The following is the third and last installment of Frederick Russell Brine's confession of how he conceived, created and foisted the mythical character, "Lafayette Mulligan, social secretary to Mayor James M. Curley."

By BERT FORD.

Copyright, 1925, Boston Evening American.

CHAPTER III.

Suspicion slipped from the shoulders of quite a few individuals in Boston when that letter-writing dandy, "Lafayette Mulligan" was unmasked.

Members of the Union and the Somerset Clubs suspected each other and so did the "pols." Innocent men were silently blamed. Some realized they were suspected and felt uncomfortable. A few were openly accused. And Mulligan's identity remained a baffling mystery.

In this respect, exclusive exposure of the international hoax by the Boston Evening American proved a public service. It banished doubt. It satisfied widespread curiosity.

It buried "Lafayette Mulligan" for all time, but the magic name will linger long as the label of one of the biggest publicity stunts exploited in years. In this thought Brine et al, may find real solace.

"Lafayette sure proved a publicity phantom," said Fred Brine, a Boston reporter, resuming his confession today. "If he only had represented a medicine or a new hair tonic, what a whirlwind he would have stirred.

"For a ghost Laffy sure had personality and charm. Stuart Griscom's letters may be thanked for these attributes. Stuart showed himself to be a regular 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table,' a finished diplomat.

SENT TO CLUB.

"Bert Gordon, after coining our hero's name, did most of the leg work. He saw that the newspapers got carbon copies of the Mulligan letters in good season, and, curiously enough, Gordon was assigned to cover phases of the story. For instance, he had to go to the Somerset Club one night to interview Bayard Tuckerman when the fictitious "Shamus Ignatius Mulligan" opened his literary broadsides from Hotel Argonne in defence of the Mulligan clan, past and present.

"Gordon was at the Somerset Club the night the doorman turned up his nose when asked if anybody by the name of Mulligan was on the list of members and he was among the galaxy of newspapermen who queried Mr. Tuckerman on the subject. That gave him a glimpse and a thrill, from the outside looking in on our joke.

"I happen to know several innocent persons who were suspected and that feature bothered us. But after the joke got started it got beyond our control. I know that the powers at City Hall suspected Dick Howard, publisher of the Boston Review, for a spell, and Bert Holden, one of Howard's special writers.

"And it is a matter of record that Mayor Curley publicly accused Frank Buxton, managing editor of a Boston daily newspaper, of being Lafayette Mulligan at a recent dinner given by the State Department of the American Legion at the Copley-Plaza.

"I learned later that Mayor Curley wrongfully connected Mr. Buxton with the affair because his initials and mine are the same 'F. B.', but where Mayor Curley got these initials is still a mystery to me.

GETTING WARMER.

"That was a sheer bit of circumstantial evidence improperly interpreted. I did not learn until very recently that Fire Commissioner Glynn, at the banquet given to Chief Daniel Sennott at the Copley-Plaza on the night of February 8, received a telegram announcing that the 'F. B.' in the case was not Frank Buxton, but the initials of a man sitting at that moment among the reporters at the press table. I was there that night. That incident convinced me that somebody was getting wise.

"One day one of my personal letters was opened and resealed. There were little happenings, each insignificant in itself, but they showed the way the wind was blowing. Suspicion was swinging my way.

"Since I've confessed I've had to take a lots of joshing, but that's easier than trying to carry the corpse of Lafayette Mulligan indefinitely.

"Last night I reported a banquet and was called upon to speak as Lafayette Mulligan. I have been peppered with questions about how we got the Somerset Club stationery and the official key and kindred matters.

"We found no difficulty procuring the club stationery, but we never will tell how we connected with the regulation key which we sent to the Prince of Wales in a morocco case.

"I feel that in satisfying the public mind by laying bare all details of the hoax my duty ends. Lafayette Mulligan is dead. Long Live Lafayette."

SENATE PROBE IN LT. KENNEDY CASE EXPECTED

Kennedy assert that he is sane. Dr. J. W. Brownlie said Kennedy has been "hounded by navy doctors" at the behest of somebody who "has an ax to grind."

Mrs. Autumn Margaret Kennedy, wife of Lieutenant Kennedy, started the proceedings for her husband's release. She described the plight of her husband as due to the enmity of the "Annapolis combination."

"I was received well enough," Mrs. Kennedy said. "Although I earned my own living by playing the violin, I came from the concert stage and was not 'too awfully bad.'

"What bothered me and finally came to be a deep hurt was the regrettable incident with Lieutenant Christie, my husband's superior officer. He asked me to go for an automobile ride with him in Hong Kong, and all the world knows what that means."

BURLEIGH'S SUICIDE.

Lieutenant Albert Pierce Burleigh, an intelligence officer, and son of the postmaster of Houlton, Me., shot himself to death at Mare Island on February 15, and was driven to suicide after he had tried to obtain a trial for Kennedy, who was sent to the insane hospital, according to Mrs. Kennedy.

"After hounding my husband as near to insanity as they could, and failing to unseat the reason of a brave man, some navy officers have determined to sequester him in a madhouse because they are part of an organized system which objects to anyone who has not come through Annapolis and because they are scared of what he could tell about Lieutenant Burleigh's suicide," Mrs. Kennedy said.

Lieutenant Burleigh was en route from Far Eastern waters to visit his family in Houlton, Me., when he committed suicide. He was married.

Burleigh's Brother Denies Receiving "Suicide" Note

Houlton, Me., Feb. 26 (I.N.S.)—Ralph Burleigh, brother of Lieut. Albert P. Burleigh, U. S. N., who was found in his cabin aboard a naval transport at Vallego, California, with a bullet hole in his head, today denied he received a "suicide note" from the young naval lieutenant.

"The last letter from my brother was cheerful and made no mention of any trouble," said Mr. Burleigh. "The reports that the Navy Department had asked me not to talk are not true. I did not know until after my brother's death that his friend, Lieut. Frank E. Kennedy, was in trouble. I have heard the reports that my brother wanted to defend Lieut. Kennedy, but that is all I know. I still think that my brother's death was the result of an accident."

Postmaster Preston N. Burleigh, father of the lieutenant, is known to have received a letter from his son to the effect that he had taken the side of an accused brother officer. The letter came from China. The father refuses to discuss the letter or his son's death.

Taxicab Which Rushed Troops to Marne, Arrives

New York, Feb. 26.—One of the taxicabs that helped Marshal Joffre in 1914 to rush French troops from Paris to the Marne to turn back the German hordes has arrived in America. It came on the liner France and was driven up Fifth avenue by Miss Hattie Baker, who drove an ambulance in Flanders. It will be turned over to a museum.

A detachment of Marines and Company G of the 16th Infantry were on the pier to receive the machine.

RUHR COAL PRODUCTION SHOWS GREAT DECREASE

Essen, Germany, Feb. 26.—Owing to a decrease in consumption, the Ruhr Valley coal production figures for February show a decline, only 344,000 tons as compared with 379,000 daily in January. This has caused the laying off of many miners. Sales of coal were so slow that 7,500,000 tons has accumulated, equivalent to an average month's output. The mild winter, the fact that most oceangoing vessels now burn oil and the high railway freight rate, still 45 per cent. more than before the war, are given as reasons for the decrease.

SAY BRITISH SUBSIDIZE THEIR TRADE RIVALS

London, Feb. 26 (I.N.S.).—The government was being subjected to strong pressure today to force action toward the collection of its French and Italian debts. Representatives of the Federation of British Industries presented a memorandum to Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, charging that the British debt policy means, in effect, that British taxpayers are subsidizing trade competitors in France and Italy.

FORD FORMS JAPANESE COMPANY TO HANDLE CARS

Detroit, Feb. 26.—Announcement of the formation of the Ford Motors Company of Japan, Ltd., and the erection of an assembling plant in Yokohama, was made today by Edsel Ford. "Improving economic conditions abroad have made a large expansion program imperative" Mr. Ford said.

PONZI IS HELD GUILTY IN HIS THIRD TRIAL

ed by Assistant District Attorney Frank Deland, the case was given to the jury at 10:30 yesterday morning. An agreement was reached at 11:50 last night, and the verdict was then sealed.

At the opening of court today, the jury presented its verdict to Judge Sisk. Ponzi's bail of $2,000 was increased to $10,000. This sum was furnished by Mrs. Benilde Malaguti of Blackwood street, who has acted in the same capacity before.

Judge Sisk also granted a second request to the effect that Ponzi be given until tomorrow to file a motion in arrest of judgment.

Mrs. Ponzi collapsed after hearing the verdict. She was in the courtroom when the foreman announced that her husband was found guilty. With friends, she walked out into the corridor and there fainted.

She slipped to the floor before her companions could catch her and struck her head on the stone floor, suffering a painful blow.

She was carried into the district attorney's office by court attaches and there treated by a court physician. When she recovered consciousness, she was removed to one of the women's rest rooms which she was unable to leave for some time.

Charles Ponzi, one of the most remarkable characters in the history of local courts, burst upon the financial world in the Spring of 1920, when his famous promise to pay fifty per cent. interest in ninety days on all money invested with him began to attract thousands of persons.

The secret of his "get-rich-quick" scheme, he stated, was the purchase of international reply coupons, and the use of depreciated currencies of foreign countries.

Although he promised fifty per cent. in ninety days he actually paid in forty-five days, and in consequence millions of dollars flowed into his coffers. Operating from a headquarters on School street, Ponzi opened branch offices throughout the State, to which thousands of small wage earners and hundreds of people of larger means flocked with money to invest.

TOOK IN MILLIONS.

Improperly equipped to handle the flood of gold, his accounting facilities consisting of a check book and card index, Ponzi nevertheless took in at least $9,582,591 before the crash.

This occurred after newspaper investigations revealed that Charles Ponzi, alias Charles Bianchi, had served a sentence in a Canadian jail, having been convicted of forgery. It was also found that the total number of international reply coupons issued by more than 100 nations during the six years preceding 1920 amounted to 7,598,982, with a gross value of only $379,949.

When his system was attacked, Ponzi announced he would pay back all the money he had taken and for days millions of dollars were handed out to investors. Then the frenzied financier surrendered to the federal authorities, was convicted of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, and sentenced to five years in Plymouth jail.

TANGLED AFFAIRS.

He was petitioned into bankruptcy and trustees and receivers were appointed, who are still at work trying to disentangle his affairs.

In the meantime the Suffolk County Grand Jury returned twenty-two indictments against Ponzi. In September of 1922, he was taken into court on a habeas from Plymouth jail and placed on trial. He was called to answer to twelve of these indictments, and after a prolonged trial, during which Ponzi acted as his own lawyer, he was acquitted.

In November of 1924, two months after his release from Plymouth jail, Ponzi again went on trial in Suffolk Court, on five indictments of larceny of sums totalling $10,800. He again acted as his own lawyer and after a trial of a week the jury failed to agree.

Then came the arrest of the former coupon king by Department of Immigration authorities. They charged he was in this country illegally because on entering from Canada some years ago he failed to comply with the law by stating he had been convicted of forgery and had served a term in a Canadian jail.

This time Ponzi retained counsel, in the person of former Assistant United States Attorney-General William H. Lewis. A hearing was granted Ponzi at the immigration station, and the facts were then forwarded to Washington for decision by the Secretary of Labor. Thus far no action has been taken on them.

CANADIAN PACIFIC LINER DAMAGED OFF IRELAND

London, Feb. 26.—The Canadian Pacific liner Montlaurier, from Liverpool to St. John, N. B., was lying off Fastnet, southwest of Cape Clear, Ireland, today, with a damaged steering gear. The liner was too far out for anchorage, but it was said she was in no danger and expected to continue on her way soon. The number of passengers on board could not be learned.

MYSTERY BABY ADOPTED BY POISON PAIR

lieved, however, either by the baby's mother or y Mrs. Willett, the latter declared.

Mrs. Willett said today that she elieves the baby is either in California or Florida as the Miles couple told Minie they intended taking the baby to one of these States during the Winter.

According to Mrs. Walter Hale McCrea of No. 1156 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, however, the mystery baby was one born to a seamstress taken into the Miles home by Mrs. Miles. Mrs. McCrae is a sister of Mrs. Miles.

Not only is the beautiful wife of the law student not a mother, but she did not intend suicide when she took veronal in her Myrtle street apartment, according to the sister. The veronal was taken by husband and wife as a sleeping potion and by accident each took an overdose, according to the sister.

SISTER TELLS STORY.

The story of Mrs. McCrea in explaining the baby is summed up as follows:

Last Fall, when Mr. and Mrs. Miles were living in Newton, a woman who had done sewing for Mrs. Miles, called and informed her that she was about to become a mother.

The seamstress, stating that she had no suitable home and no money to go to a hospital, begged that Mrs. Miles allow her to have the baby in her home. Miles objected, but Mrs. Miles took the seamstress in and the baby was born.

Mother and baby remained in the house ten days, during which time Mr. and Mrs. Miles disagreed over the latter's desire to adopt the baby, Miles finally having his objection to the adoption sustained.

The Newton police and State officers have been drawn into the search for the baby.

START SEARCH FOR BABY.

While the district attorney's office of Middlesex County is leading the search for the mystery baby, Miles and his wife are recovering at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

As soon as the student and his wife are sufficiently recovered they will be questioned.

The more the authorities probe into the affairs of the Miles couple, the deeper the mystery grows.

The mystery child was born in the home the Miles occupied at No. 47 Brookdale road, Newton, until last Saturday. Early last Fall, the young student and his wife suddenly ceased their social activities which previously had been many. Then one day in October, little baby clothes appeared on the line in the yard at the rear of the house. At once the neighborhood was agog with excitement.

The baby clothes appeared on the clothesline daily. Then Mrs. Miles appeared on the street one day. A neighbor inquired about the baby.

REPORTED BY DR. BUTLER.

"Oh, it belonged to my sister," she replied and hurried on. Later, Mrs. Miles told another acquaintance that the baby was born to her maid.

The birth at the Newton home was reported by Dr. Alfred Butler of No. 93 Waltham street, South End, and was recorded as being born to Mr. and Mrs. George Willard. The child was a girl.

Neighbors declare that during the time just preceding and after the child was born, the college student and his wife were the sole occupants of the house.

A visiting nurse called at the house shortly after the child was born. There was such an air of mystery about the thing that she reported her findings to the probation officer, who, after conducting an investigation, reported the matter to the district-attorney.

The district-attorney's office then started a probe.

BURNED KITCHEN DOOR.

All this occurred early in the Winter. Suddenly, last Saturday, the Miles couple, without a baby, quit the home they had occupied since August and moved to the apartment in Myrtle street. The furniture was moved at night.

The couple had a lease on the Newton house which called for a rental of $100 a month. When they moved out, the proprietor of the house found that one of the kitchen doors had been taken from its hinges and cut up as firewood.

It is known that the couple were aware that the authorities were conducting an investigation when they moved from Newton to the Myrtle street apartment. Shortly after they moved into the apartment, the wife bought the poison which a short time later she and her husband took.

MARRIED IN HUB.

The records at the marriage license Bureau in Boston show that they took out a license to marry on January 10, 1924, and that they were married by the Rev. Ernest Guthrie in Boston.

Mrs. Miles gave her name as Miss Dorothea Holbrook Houghton, of No. 11 Audubon road, her age as twenty-six and her occupation as "at home." Her father's name is Wendell S. Houghton and her mother's Hannah Grover.

Miles gave his age as 23, his residence as No. 517 Beacon street, which is the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity house of Boston University, and his birthplace as New York city.

Cities within easy reach of salt water could melt snow, using salt water under pressure a good deal more cheaply than by the steam process.

EX-LIEUTENANT WOOD THREATENED WITH ARREST IN SPAIN

BANK FUND IN PARIS ATTACHED

Morgan-Harjes House Refuses to Honor His $3000 Draft

Barcelona, Spain, Feb. 26.—Osborne C. Wood, former United States Army lieutenant, is in Barcelona today, staying at the Palace Hotel, and faces possible arrest. When he left San Sebastian for Madrid Tuesday it was with the announced intention of returning to America. Wood left Paris last week, leaving a number of alleged debts.

He came to Spain after heavy losses at the Biarritz gaming tables.

Whether Wood will be arrested in Spain or permitted to board a boat for America now depends on whether the Madrid office of the International Bank Corporation swears out a warrant for his arrest following his sale to them February 21 or a draft on a Paris bank for $3,000.

It was reported that the Morgan-Harjes Bank in Paris, where Wood's account has been attached, has refused to pay the draft.

When leaving Biarritz Wood arranged for a chauffeur to meet him at Irun, Spain, at 10 o'clock Friday night, February 20. From there he took a train to Madrid and Saturday night returned to San Sebastian. Meanwhile it is said the family and close friends of Wood are coming to his assistance to pay his reported $40,000 debts in

When the former lieutenant left Biarritz, according to a dispatch from that resort, he left behind him a check for 35,000 francs, which was returned marked "no funds." The check was cashed at the Municipal Casino, where Wood played baccarat with Anthony Drexel, Jr., and several other wealthy Americans.

It was asserted here that Wood, shortly before his departure from Paris, offered a check for 175,000 francs as an option for securing the proprietorship of a well-known Montmartre dancing resort, but that the check was refused because another bidder had a prior claim.

AMERICAN OPERA HAS PREMIERE AT MONTE CARLO

Monte Carlo, Feb. 26.—The new American opera "Fay-Yen-Fah," the work of Templeton Crocker, author, and Joseph D. Redding, composer, was given its dress rehearsal here. It was produced by Raoul Gunzbourg, and made such a favorable impression that it is already described as a success.

The audience at these rehearsals, which correspond to a first night in America, comes by invitation of the management and includes, in addition to the regular musical critics, leading lights in the musical, artistic, literary and social world, both French and foreign, and is consequently a most exacting one.

The opera is founded on a one-act play written by Mr. Crocker, called "The Land of Happiness," with China as its milieu.

Both Joseph D. Redding and Templeton Crocker come from San Francisco.

Young Element Takes Hub Social Leadership

Stage Events in Connection With League of Nations Non-Partisan Association; Mrs. Tuttle of New York Speaks at Copley-Plaza Dinner Today

By Betty Alden

THE YOUNGER ELEMENT OF BOSTON'S Elect stepped to the forefront yesterday and assumed reins of leadership—staging events in connection with the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association quite as lengthy and weighty as is that name.

LEADING OFF WAS the function for which Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno opened her Beacon street house and for which representatives of the Young Set sent out some five hundred cards of invitation over the names of Helen Lovering, Peggy Porter, Marian Fenno and Mrs. Richard P. Hallowell, 2d.

ALSO MRS. FRANCIS PARKMAN and Austin Lamont, John Hubbard, Palmer Dixon, Edward Dewey and Charles Denby, young Harvard men, were in attendance. Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle came over from New York to be the honor guest, and to speak of her observations at the Fourth Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva.

THE LEAGUE'S HISTORY was reviewed by Professor Manley O. Hudson of Harvard, an authority par excellence on international law and a member of the Geneva Secretariat.

PEGGY PORTER WAS hostess for a tea at the Beacon street home of her parents, Dr. Charles Allen Porter and Mrs. Porter, preceding the meeting, and Anne Tudor and Sally Shurtleff wound up festivities with two dinners for the cause.

MISS TUDOR, BUD daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dubois Tudor, and Miss Shurtleff, debutante in the family of the Arthur A. Shurtleffs, are leaders in youthful circles, so 'tis quite fitting they should shine in these League activities.

TODAY MRS. TUTTLE is honor guest and will speak at a luncheon at the Copley-Plaza of her wide experience in creating League sentiment. Those whose hands are evident in arrangements for all this include Mesdames Arthur Shurtleff, Walter E. Dewey, Miss Francis Curtis, Miss Margaret Curtis, Conrad Hobbs and Charles Jackson.

MESDAMES RICHARD ELY DANIELSON, Robert W. Means, Arthur Lyman, Norman Cabot, Daniel DeMenocal and David H. Maynard are some of the fair hostesses who have tables engaged for tomorrow evening's Senior Supper Dance.

THE ROBERT W. MEANS party is a large one, of eighteen, Mrs. Cabot plays the hostess for a round dozen, the DeMenocal group includes eight and the Maynards' guests number ten.

Miss Mabel Leigh Holden answers the morning rollcall for Vincent Club rehearsal with other members of that smart organization.

DR. DAVID CHEEVER and Mrs. Cheever have reservations for fourteen. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cuningham will have twelve guests and the L. Cushing Goodhues ten.

MR. AND MRS. B. LORING YOUNG'S table will have a merry coterie, and another gay set will gather at the table presided over by Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, the one-time Sybil Appleton, who upholds so easily a two-fold reputation for good looks and becoming array.

SHE BELONGS to the Clan of Appleton which figured so prominently in the news when H. R. H., the Prince of Wales, spent a brief and busy forty-eight hours up in the Myopia district, thus writing a new chapter in the social history of that region famed for its huntsmen and its hospitalities.

MAJOR JAMES APPLETON, Master of Myopia Fox Hounds, host to the Prince for the luncheon which inaugurated the festive round of entertaining at that time, and one of the leading sportsmen of America, is Mrs. Wolcott's brother, and Randolph Morgan Appleton is her father.

THE FAMILY HAS various broad acres in the Myopia district, known collectively as the "Appleton Farms" with two or three comfortable and glorified "farmhouses" where the several menages are set up.

JUST NOW MR. APPLETON, senior, is in Bermuda, having sailed for the Summer Isles not so very long ago to spend a number of weeks in the semi-tropical paradise, just when its wealth of late Winter and early Spring blossoms is bursting into a riot of color and fragrance.

EVERYBODY WANTS TO SIT WITH PLAY JURY

New York, Feb. 26.—With some asperity, District Attorney Banton today served notice he had nothing to do with the selection of the members of the Citizen's Juries which are to hear complaints against a dozen Broadway plays. MALDEN FATHER DEFEATS LAW BY PHONE

Captured on Coast, H. J. Middleby Freed on Agreeing to Support Son

Harry J. Middleby, forty-eight years old, former resident of Malden, now living in Los Angeles, Cal., where he was arrested by a Middlesex County officer, performed the unusual feat of satisfying the Massachusetts claims of justice and cleared his record without leaving the west coast.

When Middleby was arrested by State Officer Edward P. O'Neil on a charge of failing to support his child, Edmund C. Middleby, twelve years old, of No. 66 Cherry street, Malden, he faced a long trip across the continent in custody of the officer.

Instead, he got busy on the long distance telephone. He called District Attorney Arthur K. Reading and arranged to have a trust fund established for his son. He also agreed to pay the expenses of the officer's journey across the country. When all this was arranged, the district attorney directed Officer O'Neil to release Middleby after the trust fund, which will pay the boy $10 a week and which will be administered by his mother, Mrs. Catherine Middleby, had been established.

State Officer O'Neil is back home without his prisoner but with a check for $350 for his expenses.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Protest against what is termed American "imperialism" in Latin-America was made today by Dr. Ernest Gruening of New York before a Senate subcommittee considering the resolution of Senator Ladd against the use of American military forces in Central America. LEONORA SENDS HER 'LOVE' BACK TO MAURICE

Dancer Cheered by Bride's Message as He Seeks a New Tango Partner

New York, Feb. 26 (Universal Service).—Maurice, the dancer, who abruptly lost his partner last Tuesday when she married without informing him, suddenly took on a normal view of life today. One reason was the receipt of a telegram which read:

"Thinking of you. Please forgive us. Let me hear from you. Good luck to you always and lots of love.
"Leonora and Carlos."

Another reason was that in trying out a number of partners he turned and winked at reporters. He had found what he called the impossible in Eleanor, the Kansas City millionaire's daughter, who came to New York last August seeking fame as a dancer. Maurice said:

"As yet I have not decided upon her, as I have several more to see. But Eleanor has that sweet debutante style and is not of the 'Broadway girl' type."

His look was far away, upon Leonora Hughes.

"Just before the train left," he reflected, "she said to me: 'I admit that I should have told you about getting married, but we didn't want to hurt your feelings.'"

"It's funny about women. A French proverb goes something like this: 'What woman wants God wants.' So why put in a contract a marriage clause? A dancer must have lightness, brightness and that million-dollar flower—youth and personality. It's a rare thing to find.

"My next partner must be an American, because the American girl is the best all-around ballroom dancer in the world, and she doesn't grow stout. Leonora possessed all these qualifications. I will let you know that name of Eleanor directly I decide. Meanwhile Peggy and Cortez is substituting for me at the Trocadero Club."

48-HOUR LAW BEATEN IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Concord, N. H., Feb. 26.—Women and children will continue to work in the mills of New Hampshire as many hours as the mill agents may care to put on the schedule.

The Legislature again has gone on record as refusing to enact a law limiting the hours to forty-eight a week, despite a personal plea by Governor John G. Winant who appeared before the Legislature and made a strong plea for the emancipation of the women and children of the State.

The vote was 198 to 153.

WIFE DEFENDS DESTRUCTION BY BORGLUM

Asserts He Owned and Copyrighted Stone Mountain Sculpture Models

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 26 (I.N.S.)—Models for carving the gigantic memorial to the Confederacy on the face of Stone Mountain near here, and all studio data compiled after months of toil, lay today in debris, wrecked, it is charged, by Gutzon Borglum, who was summarily discharged as sculptor for the Memorial Association.

The clay model of the head of General Robert E. Lee was smashed, but his head already had been carved into the design.

Mrs. Borglum, wife of the artist, issued a statement declaring her husband owned the models and data, had copyrighted them and unquestionably had the right to destroy them if he chose.

Warrants were in the hands of Dekalb County authorities for the arrest of Borglum and his superintendent, Captain Jesse C. Tucker, both of whom are charged with malicious destruction of property.

In addition to the warrants, a suit seeking to recover $50,000 from the sculptor was on file today in Dekalb County Superior Court. That, it is said, was the value of the property destroyed.

Discovery that the models and data had been smashed was made when officers arrived at the Mountain studio to serve Borglum with an infraction forbidding him to enter upon the property of the Memorial Association described as the monumental carving and the studio.

Reuben Arnold, attorney for the association, declared today it would be possible to reconstruct the models from photographs.

WOODCHOPPER BURNED TO DEATH WARMING HIMSELF

Providence, Feb. 26.—Albert D. Thompson, seventy, of Hopkinton was found dead on the tracks of the old Westerly-Ashway trolley line. It is believed he met death from the flames of a brush fire he had built to warm himself while on the way from Westerly to his shack in the woods near Meeting House Bridge.

Dr. Michael Scanlon, medical examiner for Westerly, who examined the body, said the man had met death from burns and alcoholism. Thompson was a woodchopper. The sum of $43 was found near the body, while gripped in the right hand of the man was a 25-cent piece.

DIVORCE GIVEN WIFE OF REED A. ALBEE

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 26.—Mrs. Louise Holmes Albee, niece of Burton Holmes, humorist and lecturer, was granted a final decree of divorce here today from Reed A. Albee, son of E. F. Albee, theatrical magnate. Mrs. Albee, a resident of New York City and Lachmont, N. Y., mentioned an unnamed actress in her petition. Mr. Albee also lives in New York.

NEWSPAPER MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Brockton, Feb. 26.—Frank J. Middleton, for the last five years circulation manager of the Brockton Enterprize, committed suicide by hanging himself in the cellar of his home here.

No reason is known for the action of Mr. Middleton, who was in good spirits, attending a matinee at a local theatre with his wife just before he took his life.

MUSSOLINI IS BETTER, BUT MUST TAKE REST

Rome, Feb. 26. A. P.—A semi-official bulletin issued today says Premier Mussolini, who has been suffering from influenza, may be regarded as having recovered from his indisposition. His physicians, however, have ordered a long rest for the premier. Signor Mussolini was up today, having conferences with the ministers of the interior and the colonies and with the head of the premier's own department.

"LONE WOLF" HUNTER FACES TRIAL BOARD

Because he was late twice for special duty as a hunter of the Lone Wolf, Patrolman George B. Fraser of Division 19, Mattapan, went before a trial board at police headquarters charged with neglect of duty. Fraser had been assigned to the Roxbury station and reported late two nights. He said he overslept, as he couldn't sleep days. Captain Jeremiah Gallivan preferred charges.

"CALF" BORN WITH JAW OF DOG, LEGS OF PIG

Ogdenburg, Feb. 27.—One of the strangest animals ever seen in Northern New York was born to a cow on the Lyons farm here.

The animal has the protruding underjaw of an English bulldog, the legs of a pig, and the tail of a common cur. The mother, an ordinary Holstein milk cow, failed to survive.

Dr. J. A. McCrank, a local veterinarian, is taking pictures of the strange animal.

BOYS CONFESS KILLING FAMILY FOR MONEY

Berlin, Feb. 26 (Universal Cable).—After months of stubborn denial, two boys, one fourteen, one sixteen, of the village of Weiher, in Bavaria, have just confessed that they murdered their father, their mother and two other brothers in order to steal their money.

The boys are Alfred and George Mausel. The murders were committed during the night of October 14.

GOVERNOR OF RHODE ISLAND GUARDED

Police Act to Prevent Any Hostile Move by Rhode Island Bootleggers

Providence, R. I., Feb. 26.—Detectives are guarding the home of Governor Aram J. Pothier at Woonsocket, night and day.

There is an air of tension about the Governor's offices at the Capitol but no one can be found to tell what attack is feared or what danger the armed guards hope to ward off.

The close guarding of the Governor's home has filled the city and in fact the State with rumors.

The generally accepted theory is that danger threatens Governor Pothier from the rum and gambling rings, which since the advent of the Governor into office, have been broken.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT AROUSED.

Since the Governor made his inaugural address in which he promised to clean up the State, the powerful liquor and gambling interests have been in a state of consternation.

It has not been so much the direct action of Governor Pothier, but the aroused public sentiment which has driven the police to war on rum and gambling gangs. Within the past 60 days a number of the most notorious gambling establishments have gone out of business, the police acting on quiet tips that were carried to them.

A significant fact in connection with the guarding of the Governor, is the fact that the home of Mayor Soucy has also been under constant police guard since the cleanup started in Providence.

NO LOITERING PERMITTED.

"I do not care to discuss the matter. It is police business and I have nothing to say," is the only word that can be extracted from Chief of Police Fred Coe. It is Chief Coe who has assigned the men to the special guard duty.

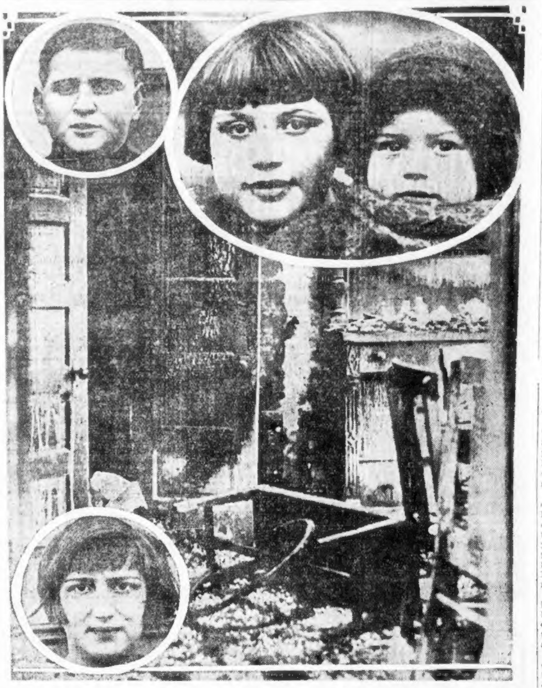
Fear of the underworld characters who long have made Providence their New England headquarters is believed to be the motive back of the extraordinary precautions that have been taken.

The officers on guard at the home of the Governor and of Mayor Soucy refuse to divulge any information. Persons are not permitted to loiter in the vicinity of the two dwellings but the guards are courteous and try to remain as inconspicuous as possible.

NEW SUIT DENIED ON BROOKLINE ARREST

A new trial of the suit of Benjamin Wax of Medford against Dennis P. McGrath, a Brookline police officer, in which the former was awarded a verdict of $1,000 for having been held under arrest for two hours in the Brookline police station has been denied, and the Supreme Court will be called upon to pass on the case.

CHILDREN ESCAPE REVERE FIRE



Scene of two-alarm blaze in three-tenement house, No. 26 Shirley avenue, Revere, today. The fire caused $1,500 damage and drove three families to the street. Four children were among those who fled the flames. Insets are the children who escaped. At top, left, Rose and Paul Swichleberg, right, Abraham Green. Below, Rose Green.

Four children were included in the occupants driven out by a fire in the three-story wooden tenement house at No. 26 Shirley avenue, Revere, for which two alarms were sounded. The building is located in the heart of Revere's closely-constructed tenement district, but fast work by the firemen kept the blaze down to a damage of $1,500. Rose and Paul Sfichleberg and Abraham and Rose Green were four of the children forced to flee the flames. Three families occupy the building.

GLORIA TO GET $900,000 A YEAR NOW

Los Angeles, Feb. 26.—According to the Los Angeles Examiner today, competition among motion picture producers for the services of Gloria Swanson, screen star, who is ill in Paris, has resulted in the signing of a new contract with the Famous Players-Lasky, by which she will receive $17,500 a week or $900,000 a year.

This salary is said to be the highest ever paid to a motion picture performer as a direct salary where no percentage is involved.

The screen actress had been getting $7,500 a week under her old contract, the Examiner says.

CHILDREN NOT TOLD.

New York, Feb. 26.—Gloria Swanson's four-year-old daughter, Gloria, and her adopted son, Joseph, two, who arrived from Paris on the steamship France, have not been told of their mother's illness, it was learned today.

The children, accompanied by a nurse and a governess, came in care of Rnee Hubert, motion picture scenic designer, in whose charge they were given by their mother.

Miss Swanson and the Marquis de la Falaise, to whom she recently was married, were to have sailed on the France, but their reservations were cancelled when the actress fell ill.

STILL GAINING.

A dispatch from Paris says the constitution and indomitable courage of Miss Swanson are pulling her steadily out of the shadows. Her temperature today was only 99.06 as compared with 103 yesterday.

The doctors believe that the crisis has passed, although another operation may be necessary when she is strong enough to stand it without danger. Unless a relapse occurs transfusion of blood will not be resorted to.

HIRED TO KILL MAN AND WIFE, HE SAYS

San Francisco, Feb. 26.—Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson announced today that Ralph King, a private detective here, was in jail and had confessed he had been employed for $3,500 to kill Fred Hotaling, heir to a fortune, and Mrs. Hotaling, Fred's wife.

According to Matheson, King said he in turn had hired two men to kill Hotaling and Mrs. Hotaling and that the men apparently had at the last minute abandoned any act of violence and resorted to the use of poisoned milk.

King was quoted as saying he was a close friend of a San Francisco millionaire.

The plot against Hotaling and Mrs. Hotaling was revealed two weeks ago when Hotaling turned over to the board of health the contents of a bottle of milk which had been left on a porch of the Hotaling home. Analysis showed the milk contained poison.

PRESIDENT AT SERVICES FOR M'CORMICK

Widow and Funeral Party Start for Illinois With the Body of U. S. Senator

Washington, Feb. 26.—Funeral services for Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, whose sudden death yesterday shocked Washington, were held today at the home of his cousin, Countess Eleanor Gizycka, nee Patterson, on Dupont Circle.

President Coolidge headed a distinguished group of personal friends that gathered at the residence to hear the Rev. J. J. Muir, chaplain of the Senate, pronounce the simple rites.

Nearly the whole membership of the Senate and many members of the House, besides Cabinet officers and other officials, were present.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, the widow, reached Washington early this morning from Chicago. She was verging on a nervous breakdown.

After the services at the Gizycka home the body was taken to Union Station and there placed aboard a private car attached to the 3 p. m. Baltimore & Ohio train for Chicago, where final services will be held tomorrow.

Senator McCormick's death was considered in some quarters as likely to have a far-reaching effect on the Republican factional disturbances in Illinois. For several years he had headed the wing of the party opposed to Governor Len Small and Senator-elect Charles S. Deneen, who defeated him for the nomination.

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney here, is considered likely to assume leadership in Chicago, with the down-State following divided between Senator-elect Deneen and Senator William B. McKinley.

Charles G. Dawes, Vice-President-elect, in a tribute to the dead Senator, said: "The recollection which comes to me most forcibly in his death is of those manifestations of Medill's sincere desire to be helpful to others."

Mother of McCormick Prostrated by News

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 26 (Universal).—Mrs. Robert McCormick suffered such a severe shock when she learned of the death of her son, Senator Joseph Medill McCormick, that she is under the care of a physician.

Providing her health permitted, Mrs. McCormick was to start north today in the private car of Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher.

President and Wife Join in Mourning

Washington, Feb. 26.—President and Mrs. Coolidge joined with members of the Senate and House and others high in the official life of the nation to pay last respects today to Medill McCormick, senior Senator from Illinois, who died here suddenly. Funeral services at the home here of Countess Eleanor Gizyoka were arranged to permit the attendance of friends and officials with whom the Senator was closely associated.

POLICE LOCATE OWNER OF ABANDONED AUTO

Milford, Feb. 26.—The touring car found abandoned in front of the new St. Mary's School on Main street is the property of Charles R. Woods of 73 Harrison street, Pawtucket, R. I.

The car is said to have been stolen from a Pawtucket garage last Sunday night and the last numeral on the registration plates was changed. Several valuable blankets and spare tires were found in the car this morning.

ASKED TO GO WEST FOR CRABTREE WILL HEARINGS

Judge Prest of the Suffolk Probate Court was asked to go to Arizona and California to hear witnesses of advanced age whom James M. Hoy, counsel for several contestants of the will of the late Lotta Crabtree expects to call. The hearing, which had been set down previously for March 11, was indefinitely postponed by Judge Prest.

Autoist Loses License in Less Than Hour

Attleboro, Feb. 2.—The career of Gustaff Johnson of No. 303 South Main street, as an automobile driver, was short and eventful, covering less than one hour. Johnson was given his license to drive by Inspector Lawrence Colrick, of the automobile registration department, and started out on his first spin, one-half hour later he had struck a stroller in which Helen Ballou, four years old, was riding, wrecked the carriage and run over the little one, and smashed down a hedge. Fifteen minutes after that he was asked to hand his license back to Inspector Colrick, and on March 7 he will be in court for reckless driving. His victim will recover.

RINGLING DENIED AS PURCHASER OF GIANTS

New York, Feb. 26.—Reports from Washington that Charles A. Stoneham's majority holdings in the New York Giants had been sold to a syndicate headed by John Ringling, the circus man, were denied today by Judge Francis X. McQuade, treasurer of the club.

VAUDEVILLE ACTORS WILL CHEER VETS

Marcus Loew Performers to Appear in American Concert at West Roxbury

The Lambert Brothers Orchestra, of Loew's State Theatre ballroom, Cecilia Weston & Company, of this week's Orpheum Theatre bill, "Officer Hyman," one of the hits at this week's Orpheum show, and a number of specialty performers widely known in Greater Boston, were to give the wounded veterans at West Roxbury Hospital a merry time today.

The Town Taxi Company volunteered to provide transportation for the artists. The entertainment is the third of a series of semimonthly programs arranged for the veterans by the Boston Evening American.

This week's program is one of the biggest ever staged at any local hospital, and Victor Morris, manager of Marcus Loew's interests here, who is largely responsible for the presence of so much talent, expected it to go over big with the veterans. Others who were to assist are the following:

Mollie Klinger, pianist and singer; "Happy" Stanley, specialty artist; Archie Lloyd and Arthur Spalding, songsters; Nell Cantor, singer, and Herbert Huston, who tickles the ivories with rare skill.

FORD PLANS TO ESTABLISH MUSEUM

All His Historic Relics to Be Housed Permanently Near Dearborn Property

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—Henry Ford's collection of relics, ranging from buildings of historic interest to delapidated "one-horse shays," is beginning to take definite form at his Dearborn plant where plans are under way for cataloging and arranging them for museum display.

Mr. Ford is withholding any official indication of what his plans are in connection with eventual disposition of the collection until final decision is made as to how and where the collection will be displayed.

It is generally understood that the collection will be housed as a permanent exhibit on or near the Ford Dearborn properties or at an old inn just outside Detroit, which Mr. Ford purchased some time ago.

The Ford collection of vehicles, dating from the earliest American days, has attracted the attention of historical societies by whom it is regarded as probably the most complete exhibit of its kind in America.

Virtually every type of vehicle is in the collection—chaises, runabouts, many styles of wagons, including the "prairie schooner," buggies, carts, sleighs, "cutters," bobsleds, stage coaches, surreys, landaus and even an old-time "band wagon" and "hose cart."

The exhibit contains examples of the early progres sof motor car making.

SAYS COLLEGES LEAD BEYOND COMMON SENSE

Cincinnati, Feb. 26.—The chief function of the university is "to supplement common sense by a revelation of forces which to common sense are invisible," Dr. W. L. Bryan, president of the University of Indiana, told the Department of Superintendence Convention today.

MRS. OSCAR R. MOWERY

Harrisburg, Pa.—"During my last expectancy my nerves gave way. I got very weak and was so nervous I could not sit still, could not sleep and was completely worn out. I suffered with pains across my back and up my spine, also had bearing pains. I had indigestion and heartburn very badly. I was just about 'down and out' when I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it corrected all my troubles, made me feel well and strong right up to the last. I had comparatively no suffering — the easiest time I ever experienced—and I had a very healthy baby. My advice to the expectant mother is, take 'Favorite Prescription.' It is a wonderful help in motherhood and no woman should go through this trying time without its aid."—Mrs. Oscar R. Mowery, 327 Dauphin St.

Observe the rhythm of the first four lines; read them and see whether they don't set your shoulders a-shimmying.

That's the intent of this grand "Last Line" Limerick Contest; to convey an irresistable sense of rhythm and at the same time tickle your funny bone to boundless hilarity.

What man, woman or child hasn't at some time been seized with the ambition to write a popular song hit and corral a half-million or more?

Watch these daily jingles and you'll fall upon some happy idea for some such song hit. Again, filling of these last lines affords heaps of invaluable practice for such an effort.

An internationally-known "cuckoo" song has earned for its authors and publisher to date over a half-million. Wouldn't be surprised if these lads came upon an idea that swept millions of folks to laughter while messing around with some limerick.

The inspiration is there, but it's up to you to find it. And the only way you'll find it is by constant application. Don't miss working out a single one of these daily jingles, f you can help it.

In the meantime you are offered $25 a line for your product. Twenty-five dollars for that last line, with a string of fifteen $1 runners-up. Not once a week, but every day.

Keep filling out this "last line" from day to day and watch for your name on the daily winning board.

There's no limit to the number of prizes you may win. Supreme merit, with a bit of legibility thrown in, is the big issue of this competition. Show it and that $25 daily award is yours.

You've got the stuff in you as well as the other man or woman, fellow or girl. Parade it out and write your ticket for the next $25 handout.

Here's your chance to garner a heap of coin for your coming vacation days.

Here's a chance to keep yourself in a blithesome mood, and get paid for it.

Here's a chance to provide yourself with the practice and inspiration for that song hit you've always wanted to write.

Read the rules and strike off that happy, funny line:

OBSERVE THESE RULES.

1—Mark the number of the limerick you are competing for on the lower left hand corner of the addressed envelope.

2—Be sure to have your daily contribution in before midnight of the third day of publication of the particular limerick or the envelope containing it posted before midnight of the second day.

3—Seven last lines for each limerick are permitted you, one on the blank form provided and the other six written neatly and legibly on a sheet of paper.

4—All winners received will be announced a week later than the day of publication.

5—The judges, editors of the Boston Evening American, will pass on each "last line" on its merits as a fitting completion of a limerick. In the event of a tie, the limerick neatest in execution will have so much in its favor when the winners are decided.

6—A condition of entry in the contest is that the contestants must abide by the decision of the judges as to winners as final.

7—All "last lines" should be addressed to the Limerick Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

The money is to go to drivers of relay dog teams who took part in a 650-mile race against death with anti-toxin to combat a recent diphtheria epidemic in Nome.

BIG GOLD STRIKE IN SOUTHEASTERN SIBERIA

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 26.—Olaf Swenson, president of a wholesale fur company here, who has just returned from Vladivostok, said that 20,000 miners have rushed to the scene of a gold discovery in Southeastern Siberia, 250 miles northeast of Blagovyeschensk on the headwaters of the Aldon river, a tributary of the Lena.

No person is allowed to take out more than 9,000 rubles and no one can remain in the district over four months.

MAN IS SLAIN; MAY BE GANG FEUD VICTIM

Killed as He Flees Politicians' Party; Dog Fails to Foil His Slayers

New York, Feb. 26.—Police report that four unnamed persons, in custody, will be charged with the murder of a well-dressed unidentified man, who was shot as he fled today from a Harlem saloon where several politicians and their women friends were staging an all-night party.

An alderman and several other men prominent in Democratic circles in Harlem attended the party and were questioned.

Two taxi drivers said the victim emerged from the saloon, pursued by three men, who shot him down from behind and then disappeared. A big dog was said to have trotted from the saloon at the heels of the man. The dog took after the slayers, but returned to stand guard over the body of his master.

One theory is that the slaying is an episode in a political gang feud that has claimed several victims.

One Says Love Stolen; Other Says $2,500

Salem, Feb. 26.—"I am kissing you a hundred times on the lips," wrote Ignatz Walichka to Mrs. Annie Niconchuk, according to a letter introduced today at the trial of the woman's husband, Wasil Nickonchuk, charged with robbing Ignatz of $2,500.

Ignatz claims that when he visited the Nickonchuk home Wasil appeared with a revolver and relieved him of $2,500 he had withdrawn from the bank the day before.

Wasil contends he simply threw Ignatz out for making love to his wife.

Lynches Negro Slayer

Shreveport, La., Feb. 26.—Joe Ary, negro, alleged slayer of N. A. Yarborough, State highway officer, was lynched today near Benton, La., by a deputy sheriff, according to a report from the offices of the sheriff of Bossier Parish.

COOLIDGE HAD NEVER HEARD OF NURMI

"What's He Done?" Remark Loses Cal Votes of the G. O. P. Sport Fans

Washington, Feb. 26.—Calvin Coolidge of Northampton, Mass., prominent Vermont photo-farmer, Washington public official and coiner of bon mots such as "law and order," went down on the list of sport followers today as a total loss.

A move for reconsideration by certain G. O. P. Sport fans on the ground that Calvin holds all press records in electric horsemanship was defeated by three rousing guffaws.

The black ball was heaved when it leaked out that Calvin Coolidge, while posing for pictures with Paavo Nurmi at the White House the other day, asked guilelessly: "What has he done?" This is considered the ultimate in a sports faux pas.

Nurmi then asked what the gentleman from Vermont had remarked and one of the brighter chaps present is rumored to have interpreted back:

"Isn't it a nice day?"

Who is Paavo Nurmi, you ask blithely? Oh—Paavo is the Swiss admiral who bottled up the Russian navy at Manila during the Japanese-Russian war.

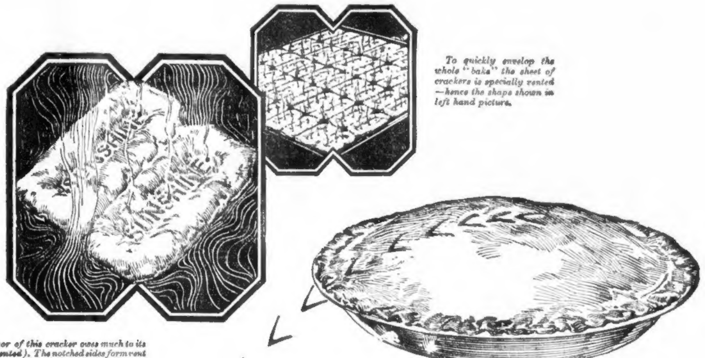
No Purer Tea than delicious "SALADA" H613

Its sparkling freshness is revealed in every steaming cup. Black, Green or Mixed Blends.



To quickly envelop the whole "bake" the sheet of crackers is specially vented—hence the shape shown in left hand picture.

The flavor of this cracker owes much to its shape (patented). The notched sides form vent holes in the sheet of crackers as they bake.

This assures through and through baking. In addition this cracker is more convenient to eat—doesn't crumble and can readily be split in two.

Vent holes and what they do for the new Sunshine Soda Cracker

THE fate of a covered pie, without its top-crust vents—is ruin. The venting relieves the pressure from the steaming filling.

It is quite as important to vent this soda cracker—but for a different reason. In addition to the piercings in the cracker, each notch helps to form a square vent in the sheet of crackers.

As they bake the heat envelops them quickly—top and bottom.

Now the rate as well as the heat of baking is important in developing flavor, and this corner V-venting, we find, times the baking to a T or should we say V.

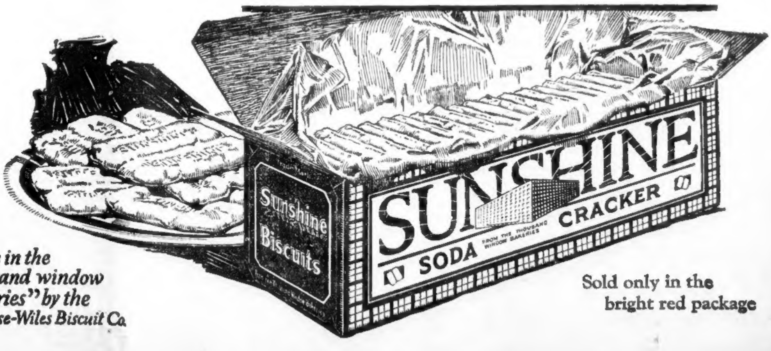
How the Full Grain Process Safeguards Baking

It all starts with the flour, and flour blending is a real job. Keeping the blend always the same is an even harder one. Notice how your favorite flour seems a little off at times.

Again, take the baking temperature, the question of dough working—there is a whole science in handling dough. You can't under-work it, and you can't over-work it.

It is in perfecting all the steps from flour to package that Sunshine Bakeries have, after months of study, perfected this new soda cracker.

This is what the Sunshine Bakeries are constantly trying to do, and, in this case, have done. Please try them.



Made in the "thousand window bakeries" by the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co.

PROPOSED DUEL OF ACTRESS PROTESTED

By C. F. BERTELLI

Paris, Feb. 26 (Universal Cable).—Insurance companies who placed $30,000 worth of insurance of the legs of Mlle. Mistinguett, famous musical comedy star, are reported to be strenuously objecting to the projected duel between her and the wife of Otto Etachguay, wealthy Frenchman. Mistinguett slapped the face of Mrs. Etachguay at the dressmakers' ball.

At the time of the incident Etachguay demanded that Mistinguett appoint a male friend to fight a duel with him, but the dancer replied that she did not need any man to defend her, and that she was quite capable of protecting herself.

Thereupon Madame Etachguay sent Mistinguett a challenge through two titled women whom she appointed her seconds. Mistinguett accepted the challenge, but the date for the duel has not been set.

A telephone receiver that had fallen off the hook at No. 92 Massachusetts avenue, paved the way to the ending of a quarrel between a husband and wife.

In one of the suites a family row was in progress, the wife sitting on the floor, crying, with the telephone receiver beside her, and the husband in an adjoining room. The police gave a little friendly advice, the couple made up and the telephone receiver was put back on the hook.

MAN TUNNELS TO VISIT DEAD WIFE'S COFFIN

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.

Berlin, Feb. 26 (Universal).—The mad love of a circus man for two women bordering on a gruesomeness and fanaticism that was almost fantastic, was revealed in the local courts today.

Otto Klemke, trapeze performer in a variety show, lost his wife by death several years ago. She had been his partner in his acts. Lately the police in a suburb of Berlin observed that a man was making nightly visits to the cemetery. They watched the prowler and finally arrested Klemke who had purchased the lot by the side of his wife's grave for his own "burial place."

From this lot Klemke had tunneled to his wife's coffin and had bored holes in the casket through which on his nightly visits he put rare perfumes and beautiful flowers.

Before his wife's death the pair had taken Lina Muniohhofer, then fourteen, to train as a variety artist, after the death of his wife Klemke fell in love with the girl and when she attempted to break away from him to marry another, he tried to disfigure her face so that her fiance would not want her. After other attempts to disfigure her, he one day put grease on the bars of the flying trapeze so she would fall and be injured and she narrowly missed a bad fall.

Klemke was sentenced to four months in prison but the sentence was suspended with a warning that he must not molest Lina any more.

U. S. AIR FORCE ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

Hub Man Is Named Secretary for Bay State; Rickenbacker Takes Part

With E. V. "Eddie" Rickenbacker, American World War ace, taking an active and leading part, there has been organized the "United States Air Force Association," which will aid in the development of areonautics in this country.

Peter C. Borre, of No. 53 State street, now a captain in the Officers' Reserve Corps, in command of the 442nd Pursuit Squadron, First Army Corps, New England Area, and a pilot overseas during the World War, has been appointed honorary secretary for the State of Massachusetts.

Captain Borre has received the following letter from Rickenbacker:

"No doubt you have kept account from the daily newspapers of the testimonies given before the 'Select Committee' investigating the advisability of a separate air service.

"In line with this thought, there has just been formed an organization known as the 'United States Air Force Association,' composed of ex-service flyers, public spirited citizens and influential business men, for the purpose of impressing upon your Congressional representatives, the Honorable Secretaries of War and Navy, the importance of a separate air service, and at the same time, commend General William Mitchell for his efforts on behalf of the national defense.

"It is my understanding that the United States Air Force Association has assumed the responsibility to the extent of appointing you Honorary Secretary for Massachusetts."

"The Boston Evening American," said Captain Borre, "has taken a very commendable position in regard to the important question of the future of American areonautics. It is doing a splendid public service."

SANFORD SUED FOR $300,000 BY ACTRESS

New York, Feb. 26.—It upset Georgia M. Hopkins, motion picture actress, considerably when she discovered that Henry Sanford, heir to the late vice-president of the Adams Express Company, "was and still is a married man with children."

It practically shattered her nerves, she declared in a $300,000 breach of promise action on file against him here. On August 8, 1923, Sanford promised to marry her, she said, giving her to understand that he was single and in every way "eligible."

When she discovered that he was none of these things, she said, she suffered so severe a nervous shock that she became ill; and she believes her ailment permanent.

Mrs. Sanford, who lives at the Ritz, would make no statement about the matter.

"Ask my husband about it," she said over the phone. "I am not concerned with it and have nothing to say."

Sanford could not be reached, and Miss Hopkins is at present in Cuba. It is said that Sanford offered a $60,000 settlement, which he later revoked.

"Boston's Pantry."

That is what the markeet district resembles to Warren E. Locke, local expert who advocates converting the Atlantic avenue link to the Elevated structure into a highway for motor traffic.

Mr. Locke's next step in relieving traffic congestion down town deals with a novel plan involving an under-way and second level for Quincy and Faneuil Hall markets.

NO HEAD NOR TAIL.

other vehicles from inclines on South other rush periods," said Mr. Locke "the market district is badly snarled up. It is pandamonium. There is no head nor tail. It's just a mad scramble. This means loss of efficiency and trade in that merchants and patrons are delayed by the congestion and confusion. Boston's market district is an important centre. It is historic. My plan, if adopted, would not only increase business, but would double property valuations.

"I propose an upper level skirting Quincy market for delivery of produce and merchandise. This level would be reached by motor and

"At present on Saturdays and Market street, Commercial and State streets. These inclines would connect with ramps leading to the Atlantic avtnue elevated motor highway.

BUSINESS ON STREET.

"At present the buildings bordering the markets are comparatively little value on floors above the street which are used chiefly for storage of stock. The basements and street floors are the trade centres.

"Then why block them with trucking when it can be transferred to the upper level? This would mean greater access to the basements and street floor stalls.

PEDESTRIAN TUNNEL.

"In addition to removing trucking from the street level in the market district to an upper level, I would have underways for foot traffic extending around the stalls on both sides of the Quincy and Faneuil Hall markets and through Dock square to Scollay square via Cornhill, and from Washington street tunnel and Adams square.

"This underway would insure shoppers against the dangers of busy streets. It would afford them comfort and convenience, expedite their marketing and make it a pleasure.

SLIGHT COST.

"Such a system of underways would be a boon to women and children in rush hours and would increase trade tremendously. Of that I am confident. The cost of constructing these underways would be slight, consisting of a base and two walls.

"My plan provides also for establishment of building lines instead of the more costly suggestion to buy property and long-term leases. Building lines would eventually bring about these results. A building line would be established to straighten out the thoroughfare from Merchants Row to Devonshire street on the south side of the market.

"It would reclaim land now used for street and other purposes to be replotted and resold.

WIDEN ELM STREET.

"Under my plan Elm street would be widened and the central building removed from Dock square. In this way both arms of the 'Y' shaped approach to the markets from Washington street would be widened.

"Extention of the underway for foot traffic to Scollay square would include abolition of the subway entrance buildings there which has been suggested in almost every plan of improvement for Scollay square. These subway structures are at present dead in the path of the proposed northern highway for motor traffic.

HOUSEWIVES CONCERNED.

"The enormous amount of food stuffs sold annually at Quincy and Faneuil Hall markets to millions of patrons make it imperative that conditions in that busy district be modernized and the sooner the better. Housewives are vitally concerned in such a plan.

"As these two markets are owned by the City of Boston they could with such a plan as I propose be made far more valuable. My plan does not carry the upper level for trucking to Faneuil Hall as the upper floors of 'The Cradle of Liberty' are not used for produce and merchandise, simply the street and basement stalls. But the upper level and underway for foot traffic is so planned as to be extended as far as needed or demanded in that district.

WAR BRIDE TO BATTLE LIFE ALONE

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 25.—Nancy Jordan Clark, who was the central figure in an international World War love tragedy, now intends to carve out her future in America by her own efforts.

The granting of a divorce decree here to Claude Hetherington Clarke, today leaves the young English girl free.

She says she will continue to live in America and to support her 4-year-old son Francis whom she brought to this country two years ago at the invitation of Mrs. Mary Vantrump Warren, then the divorced wife of Frank G. Warren, attorney of this city, now Mrs. Thomas E. Whitehead of Washington, D. C.

Warren had been a friend of Miss Jordan in London when he was stationed there as an officer during the war. She alleged he was the father of her child.

Clarke obtained his divorce by default, charging abandonment. He alleged that his wife did not take to domesticity and refused to cook his meals. He said she stayed out late at nights attending parties and would come to him only when she needed money.

The couple separated September 15 of last year after exactly one year of married life, according to Clarke's petition.

Mrs. Clarke's marital smash-up represents her second failure to find happiness in this country. Upon her arrival here two years ago she lived with her son for a time in the home of Mrs. Warren but the arrangement proved unsatisfactory and she obtained employment in a business office, placing the boy in a minister's family.

MANY CLOSE CONTESTS DUE AT DEDHAM POLLS

Several close contests are expected at the election of town officers in Dedham next Monday night. Women voters are backing Miss Etta Sullivan in her fight for one of the two places open on the school board. She is opposed by E. Dwight Fullerton and Andrew D. Galvin. George Granville Darling, who has served as moderator many times in the past, is opposed by William Harold Hitchcock, former assistant attorney-general.

William M. Browne and Charles J. Hurley, Jr., are seeking re-election as selectmen, while George Thorley, John Leonard, Charles F. Haley and Christian A. Zappe seek the places of old members. Tree Warden Walter R. Barker is opposed by John T. Kennedy, superintendent of the gypsy moth department and former tree warden.

ENDS EXILE IN SIBERIA AS CITIZEN OF FRANCE

Strasbourg, Feb. 27.—Ten years after his departure from the city to join the German army, Charles Wolff, first posted as missing and later as dead, has returned to his home town.

In 1914 Wolff was called up for service in the German army. Made prisoner by the Russians a few days after his arrival at the front, he was sent as an agricultural laborer to the Don district where he remained until peace was signed at Brest-Litovska. He married a young Russian woman and purchased a farm in Siberia 500 miles from the nearest station.

Ten years' exile in Russia and Siberia has had the effect of changing Wolff's nationality and the German soldier who left in 1914 has now become a French citizen.

IRISH FREE STATE ARMY THIRD OF OLD STRENGTH

Dublin, Feb. 27.—John Dillon, veteran Irish politician, recently denounced the Free State government for maintaining a large army at a time when economies were urgently needed. The fact is, however, that the Cabinet has been steadily reducing the military establishment of the country.

Today, in the twenty-six counties, the strength of the army is less than a quarter of that of the British forces stationed here even in pre-war days, when there was little or no trouble in Ireland.

CREDITORS GET AFTER FUND OF MRS. BUDLONG

Providence, Feb. 26.—Writs of attachment have been served on the last payment due Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong, under terms of the court order directing her husband, Milton J. Budlong, to pay his wife $750 a month until her separation suit had been disposed of.

In making this announcement Attorney Abbott Phillips, counsel for Budlong, said every effort was made to find Mrs. Budlong and pay her the money. The lawyer said the descent of the creditors, "of whom she has a lot," was precipitated by the unfortunate announcement that Mrs. Budlong was expecting the final payment on the monthly allotment paid her by her husband during the trial.

Attorney Phillips explained that only about half the sum was legally due Mrs. Budlong, as the trial ended in the middle of the month, but that in consideration of Mrs. Budlong's obligations her husband agreed to make a full monthly payment.

"It is a mixed-up legal situation," explained the lawyer. "All we can do is to file a so-called garnishee's affidavit and submit the proposition to the court. Mrs. Budlong has a lot of creditors. Two of them are trying to attach the money Mr. Budlong has sent her. We don't care who gets it as long as it goes according to law. While we were waiting to pay her the money it was attached in our hands. So far, the whole amount has not been taken."

Before the pictures at the armory, Lieutenant Wade, Lieutenant Arnold and Lieutenant Brown, chairman of the world flight committee, will be the guests of the Crosscup-Pishon Post at a dinner at the Algonquin Club. WAS NOT FIT TO DO HER WORK

Dreadful Condition of Mrs. Fullerton's Health Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Clearfield, Pa.—"I cannot begin to tell you how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way. Before taking it I couldn't stand on my feet without pains running all through my whole body from my waist down, just like threads pulling. I was not fit to do any work. My mother got me to try the Vegetable Compound and I have found great benefit, and I not only recommend it for such troubles, but to build up the whole system. I have used it for most everything that gets wrong with me. When I begin to feel nervous and irritable I don't stop long in getting a bottle of the Vegetable Compound if I haven't got one in the house. It gives a fine appetite and makes a new woman of me. You may use this testimonial in my own town or anywhere else, and I will answer any letters I receive."—Mrs. Rush Fullerton, 525 S. 2nd Street, Clearfield, Pa.

'Surf Flask' Makes Appearace on Florida Beach

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26.—The "surf flask" is the latest fashionable device of bathing devotees.

It is a small receptacle holding a couple of drinks and is attached to the belt which upholds the bather's trunks. It is made so as to withstand the attacks of the waves.

The flasks, made of nickel or plated silver, are handy for the men, but the women, owing to the abreviated nature of their costumes, have difficulty in attaching the trinkets to their persons.

COERCION TRIED BY PULLMAN CO. IS CHARGE

McLaughlin of Nebraska Says Lobbyist Made Covert Threat to Him

Washington, Feb. 26. (Universal)—On the eve of the scheduled climax in the fight in Congress to repeal the Pullman surcharge, charges were made by advocates of the repeal that the Capitol is infested with railroad lobbyists and that they are using high-handed methods to prevent the repeal.

Representative M. O. McLaughlin, Republican, of Nebraska, says one of the lobbyists called on him in his office and when unable to convince the Nebraska Representative that he should vote to continue the surcharge, said, in the presence of McLaughlin's secretary:

"Well, you are a young man, but you will be older some day and you will understand what I mean, though you may not now. You will find out that Congress cannot and will not—it dare not—pass any legislation that the railroads don't want."

If he is given an opportunity to speak, McLaughlin will make this charge on the floor of the House. The matter is coming up in the form of a report from the conferees on the independent offices appropriation bill, saying they have been unable to agree with the Senate conferees on the Robinson rider declaring the surcharge to be unlawful.

SENDS WOMAN PRISONER TO HOTEL

Complained of Her Cell in the Clinton Jail, So the Police Head Transferred Her

Clinton, Feb. 26.—A broader and finer place to live in would be this world if everyone were as big-hearted as Police Chief Kittredge, who furnishes hotel accomodations for those prisoners who may be disappointed in his jail.

Chief Kittredge's cells are no bridal suites at best, and just now they're not even at best, he admits. So when Mrs. Mabel Fagell, employe of the Worcester State Hospital, kicked to the room clerk on the cell to which she was assigned, she was sent to sleep in a local hotel.

Mrs. Fagell, who is forty-four, is charged with the larceny of $125 from George M. B. Tuttle of Sterling, for whom she was housekeeper.

"The customer is always right," quoth the Chief," and so Mrs. Fagell spent the night in the hotel.

Policeman Finds Pet Dog; Wife Given $1,000

New York, Feb. 26 (Universal).—Katie Shaw, wife of Policeman John R. Shaw, was all smiles today. She was thinking up the nicest way to spend $1,000.

A check was mailed to her by Charles Levine, as a gift because her big husband had found and returned Wyckoff, little Eloyse Levine's $3,000 Russian wolfhound. Eloyse has cried incessantly since the disappearance Saturday, and a high fever put her in bed. She loved the dog so.

STREET TRAFFIC

in the City of Boston

Traffic Officers Doing a Great Job Under Trying Conditions

CRITICISM of the Traffic Squad is not taken seriously by Boston business men who know the conditions under which the traffic officers operate—the crowded streets, too small and crooked to accommodate the great number of automobiles, trucks and pedestrians that press through them daily make it difficult in the extreme for the police to keep things moving quickly and safely. And then the Jay Walkers—they make it harder for the traffic officers. If these officers were not alert and on their toes all the time the hospitals would have to be enlarged to take care of Jay Walkers.

We need more traffic police for nights and holidays. As a citizen and taxpayer I have the privilege of at least asking: Is the traffic department undermanned and under paid? The police, firemen and letter carriers were always and are now underpaid. (More about this later.)

I think, and so do scores of my business friends, that the traffic squad is doing good work—and, believe me, it is no easy job to regulate traffic in Boston.

SENATE EXILES PUT UNDER ARREST

Blanket Warrant Served on the Indiana Solons Who Fled to Dayton, O.

Dayton, O., Feb. 26 (A.P.).—The blanket warrant for the arrest of Democratic Senators of the Indiana General Assembly, who bolted the Legislature yesterday and came to Dayton, was served on all but two members early this morning.

Jerome Brown, instructed to take the lawmakers back to the State House at Indianapolis, said the men flatly refused to acknowledge the warrant. They challenged his authority, he added. Senators Batt and King were not served.

Minority Leader Cravens offered to resign as a Senator, but told Mr. Brown that the Senators would not follow him back to Indiana.

The Democratic members of the Indiana Senate arrived here in a chartered motorbus last night, having quit the Indiana Legislature because of alleged unfair legislation. The charge centered around a bill which they declared would give the Republicans an additional Congressman if passed.

As a result of the "strike," the Indiana Senate was unable to pass on bills for want of a quorum. The Senate consists of fifty members, thirty-two of whom are Republicans and eighteen Democrats. Thirty-four constitutes a quorum.

Two other members of the minority were reported to be in Cincinnati. The two remaining Democrats in the upper chamber are ill in Indianapolis.

The "strikers" plan to remain away until after March 9—the end of the session—unless assurance is given that the bill in question will be withdrawn.

ANNUAL DOG SHOW COMES TO CLOSE

Welwire Barrington Bridegroom Chosen Best Dog for 2d Consecutive Year

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., president of the Eastern Dog Club, at the closing of the 13th annual show of the organization, awarded the three prizes offered by the Boston Evening American for interesting stories about pet dogs.

The prize contest was conducted by Capt. Percy Redfern Creed. The first prize, of $25, was handed to Mrs. G. L. Tyler of No. 404 Reservoir ave., Revere; the second, $15, to Ralph R. Smith, and the third, $10, to Miss Lavinia L. Ware, of No. 54A Dartmouth st., Somerville.

For the second successive year Welwire Barrington Bridegroom, the wire-haired fox terrier of Homer Gage, Jr., of Shrewsbury, was adjudged the best dog in the show. This feat is regarded by dog fanciers as unusual, as it is seldom the same dog takes show honors two years in succession.

The awarding of prizes in mixed classes, in which the contestants were all prize winners in their respective classes, was the feature of the last day. Hundreds crowded around the judging ring or watched the competition from the balcony.

In the Sporting Dog class, first prize went to Champion Rosemont Liskeard Fortunatus, a beautiful greyhound owned by Rosemont Kennels.

Among the "working dogs," premier honors were awarded to one of the dogs of the popular Doberman Pinscher class, Prince Favoriet V. D. Koningstad, owned by Westphalia & Whitegate Kennels.

The prize among terriers went to Champion Welwise Barrington Bridegroom, a wire for terrier, owner, Homer Gaze, Jr. The toy dog competition was a popular event, bringing together the prize winners of the Pomeranian, Chihuahua, Pekinese and other little fellow classes. First went to Radiant Eastney the Gem, owned by the Radiant Kennels. In the non-sporting class, a chow, Champion Greenacre Li Pong Tow, owner, Greenacre Kennels, won first place.

1,000 SLAIN IN MASSACRE BY ARAB TRIBE

Transjordanians Surprised by Sudden Attack of the Wahabi Tribe

Damascus, Feb. 26.—One thousand inhabitants of Transjordania were killed and many were wounded when taken by surprise by forces of 10,000 Wahabi tribesmen who crossed the border of Transjordania and started a march toward Amman, says an announcement made today by Sulton Ibn Saoud's political representative here.

The Transjordanians, unprepared for defense, fled in panic under the assault of the Wahabis, led by Emir Abdul Aziz, the announcement adds.

It is stated that the purpose of the Wahabis' march toward Amman is to expel Emir Abdullah, the ruler of Transjordania, as this is part of the Wahabis' plan to dethrone the Hashimite family in the Arab countries.

COERCION PLOT CHARGED IN STOKES CASE

Samuel Untermyer Named in Connection With Millionaire's Defense

Chicago, Feb. [illegible]—An attempt to show lawless [illegible] was renewed today by the defense in the trial of W. E. D. Stokes, New York [illegible] and others [illegible] conspiracy to [illegible] his wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes.

Defense [illegible] Charles E. W[illegible] Assistant State's Attorney [illegible] fees for [illegible] Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer for Mrs. Stokes, in connection with the Stokes divorce case, and [illegible] show intimidation of two State's witnesses, but [illegible] defendants.

Today they attempted to show intimidation of a third witness not a defendant. He is "Top" Farse, negro, owner of a notion store, who had testified that two of Stokes agents had asked him to sign an affidavit which purported to say that Mrs. Stokes was intimate with the negro manager of a cafe.

Questioned by J. J. Healy, defense counsel, Farse said he was held prisoner at a hotel by two [illegible] for three months. Healy read conflicting passages from the stenographic transcript of Farse's signed statement at the State's Attorney's office before he was held [illegible]. The witness admitted [illegible] swear he had [illegible] to the assistant State's Attorney [illegible] Lee, Stokes' agent, [illegible] knew "the red headed g[illegible]" in the affidavit as Mrs. Stokes.

Healy then read the following question and answer from Farse's earlier statement:

"You knew and they [illegible] the affidavit was a frame-up."

"I knew [illegible] knew."

Farse said he did not remember making that answer to such a question.

CHENEY'S WINTER GREEN CREAM LINIMENT

The Indians called Wintergreen Oil "Wonderful Wintergreen" because it lubricates the joints and muscles, because it relieves neuralgia soreness, pains of rheumatism, inflammation from sprains, burning of chilblains, neuralgic pains.

Relieves chest and bronchial inflammation, preventing pneumonia and other more serious troubles.

It is delightful to use, as it consists of Wintergreen Oil mixed with other valuable oils into a white creamy liniment.

It rubs in dry, being completely absorbed.

Others call it wonderful. You be the Judge.

ADMITS U. S. WOULD LOSE ISLANDS

Mitchell Charges Supported in Part by Admiral Jones; Navy Needs Much

Washington, Feb. [illegible]—Charges [illegible] of a united air force [illegible] by Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of army air service, were heard today before the House Aircraft Committee.

Admiral Hilary P. Jones read [illegible] [illegible] navy [illegible] [illegible] present the [illegible] of the navy.

Representative O'S[illegible] asked Admiral Jones his opinion of Brigadier General Mitchell's statement that the Philippines could be captured within two weeks by an enemy power.

"Two weeks is a [illegible] time," answered the Admiral, "for an enemy to dig in so they could consider the islands theirs."

WOULD LOSE ISLANDS

"How long would it take?"

"I would hardly like to hazard a guess," the witness replied. "I don't think they could be taken by air alone."

"Could you estimate the time a navy and an air fleet could capture the islands?"

The Admiral replied that the islands would be taken before we could get a fleet there, adding: "Of course they could be taken."

"If we were assured there would be no trouble for the next few years," said Admiral Jones, "we would know better how to spend the money allotted us. But as it is, in my opinion, all units that make up the national defence should [illegible] for immediate duty."

"Is the Navy ready for such [illegible]?" asked Representative [illegible].

"There are a great many things we should have done," the admiral replied, "especially in construction of aircraft and submarine [illegible]."

Reverting to the report of the special naval board, Representative O'Sullivan asked whether any members of the board were experts on aircraft.

SLICED IN BUDGET

There were no pilots on the board, the Admiral answered, but several members, including himself, had much practical knowledge of aircraft.

Members developed that the navy's request for aircraft for the coming year was $32,000,000, but that the item was cut to $19,000,000 by budget officials. The Budget Bureau reduced the navy's total estimates of $352,000,000 to $283,788,978, but allowed an additional contract authorization of $4,000,000 for naval aviation.

33 ACCUSED AT TRIAL OF COMMUNISTS

Beuthen, Ger., Feb. 26.—Another Communist trial in which the thirty-three defendants has started here. The defendants are charged with an alleged secret conspiracy to undermine the republican government and with illegally acquiring arms. The charges grew out of the 1923 attempt to establish a proletarian dictatorship. Ninety-one witnesses have been summoned. The court decided to exclude the public from all hearings, as the security of the state might be endangered. The cases of eight other Communists are to be heard.

MOTOR TRUCK SYSTEM TRIED ON B. & M.

Motor trucks and busses for transportation of passengers and freight have already been successfully demonstrated in the service of the Boston & Maine R. R., according to testimony at the branch line hearing at the Federal building today.

H. F. Fritch, assistant to the chairman of the board of directors of the road, testified that the motor service was tried out during the past Winter at Ashburnham.

It is the plan of the Boston & Maine to substitute similar service for the sixty-two miles of Essex County branch lines which the road wishes to abandon.

At the [illegible] Mr. Fritch's testimony, Interstate Commerce Commissioner H. B. Meyer, who has been hearing testimony with members of the Department of Public Utilities [illegible] for Concord, N. H. He was accompanied by [illegible] & Maine officials [illegible] for the Stockholders Protective Association [illegible].

HEARING IN N. H.

In the State House at Concord Commissioner Meyer with members of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission will hear the Boston & Maine on plans to abandon branch lines in that State.

Mr. Fritch's testimony followed that of B. G. Grant, general passenger manager of the road, who told of how traffic had fallen off on the branch lines which it is proposed to abandon. He said his testimony was based on computations made by conductors. He was cross-examined by William H. Sullivan, special assistant attorney general, and Conrad Crooker, counsel for the Stockholders Protective Association.

Mr. Fritch said he had made a study of conditions in the territory now served by the branch lines in question. He said it is proposed to hook up the communities affected with other lines by motor trucks and busses so that none will suffer.

"BETTER THAN TRAINS"

The motor service, he said, will be operated by the Boston & Maine Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the railroad.

He argued that the bus and truck in certain places are better suited to carry freight and passengers than steam trains.

"The entire South Reading branch is substantially parallel with a good highway and along a portion of the line where there is the most traffic there is also a street railway service," he said. "Along about half the route there is, and has been for years a bus service operated under community management.

"The Newburyport branch may be divided into two parts, the southern end from Wakefield to Lynnfield Centre and the northerly end from Danvers to Newburyport. Bus service can easily be provided between Wakefield and Lynnfield Centre."

Before the adjournment of the hearing, Commissioner Meyer announced that objectors may file before April 1 against the Boston & Maine may put in additional exhibits before April 15.

It was stated that before going to Concord the [illegible] between Boston and Newburyport which the road proposes to abandon would be inspected.

You don't have to stand over this new kind of soap while it washes. Unaided, it gently loosens and floats out the dirt . . . .

Then you just rinse the clothes snowy white

This New Kind of soap, unaided, loosens dirt—leaves you just the rinsing

Now you just RINSE

This new kind of soap does the washing for you —

HELPING imperfect soap—that's what women have been doing on washday.

Rubbing and rubbing to dissolve the soap—rubbing still more to loosen dirt. Hard, dreary work.

Now from the makers of Lux comes a new kind of soap for the family wash—a soap in tiny granules that dissolve quickly, completely. Rinso really does by itself without any hard rubbing all the hard work of loosening dirt. Then you are left with only the lighter work of rinsing the clothes clean. That's why it is called Rinso. Gently, safely, while you rest or do other things, Rinso does the washing.

Washday is SHORTER—because you no longer have to rub soap on clothes and then rub clothes on the washboard. All this time is saved.

Washday is CHEERIER—because you no longer work alone for hours rubbing and rubbing.

Washday is EASIER for you—easier on the clothes. Rinso really does the wonders for your weekly wash that Lux does for fine things.

Does this seem hard to believe? Rinso is now doing all the hardest part of washing in more than a million homes every week. Read what these women say:

"No more standing over the tubs rubbing — now the dirt floats out and I just rinse" . . .

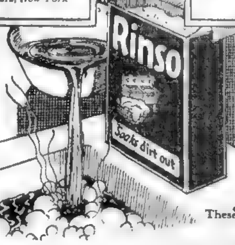
"One day I read about Rinso and decided to give it a trial. I found that I had practically no rubbing to do after I had soaked the clothes over night and followed directions. The spots that were quite dirty came out with one rub and good thorough rinsing. I can now finish my wash in about two hours, feeling just as fresh as though I had not done the washing."

Mrs. J. C. W., Yonkers, New York

"The thorough rinsing brings out everything snowy white" . . .

"I am delighted with the way Rinso gets my clothes clean. I put my clothes to soak at night and in the morning I find them so clean. The thorough rinsing brings everything out white as snow. I am saved so much time and labor—actually it gives me an extra two hours. There is almost never any rubbing except on places that always have to be rubbed a bit because they are so grimy. But even this is loosened by Rinso."

Mrs. E. W., Arlington, Mass.



DIRECTIONS:

Save all that time you used to spend rubbing bar soap on clothes. Put some Rinso in a saucepan. Pour boiling water over it to set all its good cleansing power free. Quickly, completely the tiny granules dissolve into a clear solution. Pour this into the wash water. Use enough to get creamy, lasting suds. Then drop in the clothes. Soak—boil—or use a washing machine as you prefer. Rinso works perfectly any way you like best to wash. Only very soiled places, like cuff edges and romper knees, may need just light rubbing between your hands after sprinkling them with dry Rinso. Get Rinso today in the big new package or the regular size. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora, at seventeen, fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew was killed in an auto accident. Nora met Maxwell Reed, who made love to her. Margaret died and Nora was left alone. She plunged into a fast set of flappers. Dane upbraided her for her association with Max. They are married and Nora finds her troubles beginning.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

HE bit his lips. After a while he looked at her stea[illegible] "You don't need to wish that. You are beautiful now [illegible] eyes were never so fine. You wanted a child, didn't you?"

Her mood shifted with uncanny swiftness. She fe[illegible] a wave of love flowing out from her heart even to her finger-tips. She was given now to these rapid transitions from mood[illegible] to a dreamy longing; from resentment to joy. She said no[illegible] with a wide, childish grin, "Yes, sir! It seems that I'm to have it."

OF A HARDY RACE

When the time approached it was he that trembled and Nora Lee that smiled. She said with a buoyant carelessness: "Don't be alarmed for me. You know millions and millions of girls have gone through this and lived to laugh. I come of a hardy race."

He said: "I wish it was over. I wish I was away somewhere."

"Go—that's a nice, friendly wish. I didn't run out on you in your dilemma. But I'll let you go . . ."

"Don't urge it, Nora Lee. You don't know how I want to run—I'd like to go out and get roaring drunk and wake up a week from now."

"Don't think you will, though, do you?" She looked at h[illegible] gently and laughed: "I'm not going to mind it. I hear th[illegible] make things easy today . . ." She was secretly thrilled—she felt as though all the chords of her being were melting in a sweet, holy tenderness. They came nearer and nearer in th[illegible] piercing bond of anxiety and longing.

SHE FELT HIS TEARS

He said brusquely: "God—it would be a lot easier to bear it than see you suffer."

"Don't fool yourself, my dear fellow. As some wise man said—if you had to bear it, there would never be a family of more than three in the world. First, it would be my turn, then yours, then mine again—but you or any man on earth, the second time? Never."

But she remembered the ashen blue of his face when he kissed her—when he clung to her hand and kissed her again. She felt the tears on his eyelids

Gillman, who is thirty-five and lives at No. 136 Highland street, Chelsea, was graduated from Suffolk Law School last June after five years of the toughest grind in the curriculum of learning—studying [illegible]

At the last bar examination he passed with flying colors and all that remains undone now to make him a full fledged standard bearer of Blackstone is to be sworn in. Ye who are lame in ambition—or just plain lazy, listen to [illegible] Gillman's story.

"I was born [illegible] he [illegible] a Boston [illegible] reporter. "I came to this country with the family when I was fifteen.

Whenever I became a little discouraged [illegible] I would read extracts from Lincoln's life and the reading never failed to cheer me. From a boy [illegible] Lincoln was always my ideal."

MALONEY 10 TO 7 FAVORITE FOR BOUT WITH ROJAS TONIGHT

PUNCHERS READY FOR BIG TEST

By JACK CONWAY

JIM MALONEY, greatest puncher developed in New England since the days of the immortal John L. Sullivan, rules a 10 to 7 favorite for his ten-round heavyweight battle with Quintin Romero Rojas, which will be staged by the Commercial A. C. at Mechanics Building tonight.

Despite Rojas' wins over Jack Sharkey and Jack Renault in this city, keen observers of fistic affairs are of the opinion that Maloney's deadly punching will enable him to send the Chilean champion down to defeat.

There is more interest in the quarrel between Maloney and Rojas than in any boxing bout staged in Boston in years. The size of the crowd will be determined only by the capacity of Mechanics Building.

Maloney will carry the well wishes of Boston and New England with him as he climbs into the ring to give battle to the fistic idol of South America. The fans are eager to see South Boston's 2-year ring sensation conquer the stolid and determined Rojas in impressive style and then continue his drive for a bout with Jack Dempsey for the world's championship.

Maloney has the color and class that appeal to the popular imagination. He comes from good old Irish stock, started his career in the amateurs where he knocked out most of the opposition and then continued his triumphant drive in the ranks of the professionals.

"THE punch is the thing," is the way John L. Sullivan once put it when discussing a flock of heavyweight contenders with this writer.

And Maloney has the wallop so necessary to any young man who hopes to climb the dizzy heights of pugilism. He also has a fair amount of speed, and, more important, a keen BRAIN. Maloney makes mistakes in the ring but he never makes the same mistake twice.

The outstanding [illegible] of Maloney's career were [illegible] over Joe Stoessel, Jack Sharkey and Sully Montgomery.

Stoessel, a big giant, was battered into submission before 5,000 fans at the [illegible] show at Jersey City. The clever Sharkey was outpointed in a close fight while Montgomery was [illegible] outclassed when he delivered a low blow which ended the contest.

NOW the South American menace confronts Maloney. Rojas, a silent man of the ring, mighty puncher, aggressive, and with grim determination, stands ready to test the mettle of South Boston's favorite son.

Rojas, like Maloney, is fascinated at the prospects of some day battling Jack Dempsey. He is already talking about meeting Harry Wills in the event he scores Maloney down amid the waves of [illegible]

OVERSTEPPING

The New York State Boxing Commission steps beyond its own authority when it overrules the decision of its boxing judges. This is just what happened Tuesday when the "Big Three" of Gotham fisticuffs decided that Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia should stay in the lightweight elimination tourney despite the fact that he lost the decision to Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo on the previous night.

Jimmy Goodrich

When these judges are appointed, they are vested with the power to give decisions and their word, with that of the referee, is regarded as final. In the case of Wagner the two judges ruled against him and the referee voted for him. That automatically eliminated him from further consideration as a contender for Benny Leonard's crown. But the Commish ruled otherwise.

If [illegible] judges [illegible] the privilege of [illegible] the [illegible] of these men which in other words means instant dismissal. But they should not attempt to change a decision the judges have already made. This is overstepping their power and is bound to create a condition where competent men will not want to judge bouts.

The Denver Post of February 16, just received by the writer, contains an account of a ball game and skiing races held on the same day and only an hour apart. While the skiers were having it out in the snow clad Genesee Mountains above Denver, big league and minor league ball players were playing before a crowd of 2,000 down below. Dudley Lee of the Red Sox played second base for the defeated team and got two hits in five times at bat and accepted six out of seven chances in the field.

RUTH'S APPETITE

Babe Ruth tells the wide world he is confining himself to one meal a day during the training season, but what he [illegible] in that one meal [illegible] makes up for what he loses in the other two. Babe has a ravenous appetite, not easily satisfied, and we have a sneaking suspicion that he wanders off to places unknown to snatch an extra bite now and then.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The main thing in the back swing for the upright half swing is the same thing as the main thing in that part of any back swing—keep slow and low. Start the club back with an initial movement of straightening the right knee "up"—but not to the knee locking point—then let the club "drift" around to the right. Meantime keep it still low to the ground with pressure downward with the left arm. Keep the left arm in rather close to the body on this part of the swing. After you have let the clubhead "drift" around to the right, your weight will have transferred largely to your right leg. Now break the wrists upward and let the arms go upward with the club, but stop when you are about as high as your shoulders with your arms. Then let the clubhead naturally fall right back and into the ball.

LAST NIGHT ON THE AIR

Ash Wednesday was fittingly observed by many of the broadcasting stations. Last night could be heard religious programs and services from many points. WNAC filled the bill locally by broadcasting the evening service from St. Paul's Church. I observed also that WNAC cut out all their dance music yesterday.

Broadcasting has brought out a very peculiar condition in our daily life. We hear programs from the various stations and are gradually led to wonder what is all behind them. The broadcasters, of course, are desirous of pleasing the public—but do they ALWAYS know what the public really wants?

The answer is decidedly NO! They may have a very good idea of what people are looking for, but there are occasions when even a wizard could not tell. I imagine last night was one of these times. The net result was as it probably should have been—some stations broadcast religious programs, while others broadcast their regular programs. There was variety enough to suit everyone.

WEEI leaned toward a popular program last night. First we listened to the Traveler Shoe Orchestra, then Monty Cohen's Radio Equipment Company Entertainers who performed skillfully on their steel guitars. The Gillette Safety Razor Company's dance orchestra was the final musical feature, lasting practically an hour.

Conditions for reception last night would have been real good had it not been for the many noises which were in the air. I was bothered by noises which emanated from car tracks, wires up in the trees, static, and Heaven only knows what not. It was no kind of a night to fish after the distant stations.

Are you one of the pale-faced failures?

YOU see them on every side...pale faces... the unsuccessful...men and women, even children, who are leading languid, listless, incomplete lives.

Have you ever stopped to ask why? Insurance doctors will tell you that 8 out of every 10 men and women are suffering from Anemia ... blood starvation. Usually they don't know it ... don't know that their lack of vitality, of energy, of ambition, is due to a cause that yields quickly to proper treatment. Are you one of the 80%.

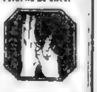
Stop now as you read and make these simple tests... they may show you the way to a new life... with a new zest... a rich vital life, made again possible by rich, red, strength-building blood.

Physicians have seen thousands of patients renew health and strength by the use of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It is the sure way, the safe way, to regain energy. Its iron and manganese content is easily assimilated by the blood and rebuilds the latent power of a run-down body.

Your druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid or tablet form. Start a good Gude habit now.

MAKE THESE TESTS:

Press the thumb-nail. Watch the time it takes for blood to return. Anemia is indicated unless blood returns at once.



Press flesh between hand and thumb. If the blood does not return at once it indicates Anemia.

Unless the inside of eyelid is a bright scarlet Anemia may exist.

NORA LEE

A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

During long, terrible hours these kept dropping in her thoughts cool, sweet, beautiful. She wished to assure him: "It's nothing!" She wanted to beat her fist against her mouth and shut back those strange, uncontrollable, awful sounds.

Finally some one smiling—some one saying: "Just breathe naturally—you're all right—" ing—

A blessed lull — moments pass.

A Different Life

That kind person there waving off the anguish—smiling—voices muffled rapid—far-off a sharp, strident cry.

Some one laughed. The kind person whispered: "Your baby is here."

She remembered demanding angrily: "A son! Is it a son?"

And the kind one laughed: "Will you send it back? Yes—it's a son."

She closed her eyes, not knowing if it was joy or peace—or only a wild relief that filled her so.

When he came in she laughed, faintly, and said: "Well—you see it is a son!"

And later trembling: "Now all our life will be different!"

Nora Lee looked at the pink, sleeping face and softly brushed the dark hair from the baby's forehead. It smiled—a vague, sweet parting of its lips. This gave her an exquisite thrill—a moment of wonder. She continued gazing at the small features. She was capable of sitting in the garden near the baby-carriage while he slept, and watching the hours—watching and dreaming. The warm, lovely little thing—what was it to be? Something magnificent and noble, of course. Then she would see him a lad of 19, exuberant and sparkling, going off to college. But rushing home on Saturday nights eager to see her—telling her all his plans—all his hopes. He would be tall and sweet and strong.

"Job" of Motherhood

Tears filled her eyes at these visions. She could scarcely bear to have the child out of her sight. In the rare intervals when she dashed to town for a few hurried purchases she would telephone in each shop to learn if he was all right. And learning that he was sleeping, that he was perfectly well, she gulped with a glad relief.

She gave herself up to motherhood with a consummate passion. She read books on infant hygiene, infant diet, child psychology. She thought of nothing else.

But she was unaware of this. She even forgot to be concerned about her slim, beautiful figure. When the child no longer needed her strength, she could reduce.

Once Dane said to her: "He's the most important, Nora Lee!"

"Of course! You see he's yours."

She didn't notice the rather pinched, hungry look in her husband's face. When he had extra work to do he brought it home now so that she wouldn't be lonely. And he liked to talk when he was working out a plan.

"Come over here, Norry, and tell me if you think this is a good arrangement."

She was absorbed in a book by Holt—reading it avariciously, as though it were a glamourous novel. She got up lazily and with difficulty fixed her attention. But she became interested and was making clever suggestions when the baby cried..

The papers dropped from her hands and she sped down the hallway. It was an hour before she returned. Long after the baby had been fed and hushed she remained in the dim room with his fingers twined about her thumb.

"My son has a mother, but his father has lost a wife." Dane said with a laughing accusation.

"Your son needs a mother more than his father needs a wife."

"No he doesn't."

Only Child Counts

She sat at his side and idled with a pencil. "You don't begrudge me to him, do you?"

"Ellen could have done that just now."

"No—she couldn't. And you couldn't and nobody could but I."

"But she could take a great deal of the care. You're forgetting yourself entirely."

"It's a good thing for me, perhaps."

Yet it was astounding how little anything counted to her but this in her life, even when love was at it's sweetest; even when love was at its bitterest, had she been so completely absorbed.

She had let herself down into a vast pit of solitude. The world went thundering by—a blare of music; a flash of color. Nebulous echoes trailed in to her. They awakened no desire. She was shut away from everything—but she was glad. These four months had been the deepest, the most peaceful and fulfilling she had ever known.

One evening when the baby was seven months old Dane came into the living room and rather showily unwrapped a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Nora Lee gave a soft laugh, but touched her finger in warning to her lips. Her son was sleeping in her arms.

Dane went up and took the child from her. She was rather fascinated by his masterly air and by the glow in his eyes, the happy pride on his mouth as he loked down at the pink cheeked infant.

He went down the hallway and laid the baby in his crib. Then he returned and put the flowers in Nora Lee's hands.

She regarded them absently: "Why did you take him from me? He's not really asleep, yet.

"My Son"

"He's my son and I can take him if I wish. I don't propose to have him ruined by a blind, indulgent mother."

"You choose the mather."

"She's all right. But she's going out tonight and she better get ready."

He had tickets for the theatre. Nora Lee protested. She couldn't leave him that long. He had to be fed at a quarter of eleven. They couldn't be back that soon.

Dane said imperturbably: "He never wakes up till 11 30."

"He may tonight. It might just be the time when he would."

"Then he can wait."

She glanced at him hotly, as though he had suggested the murder of the child.

He laughed at her. "You're going! If I have to drag you there by the hair."

"None of my clothes fit me."

"You ought to have others. You have money enough. Wear that blue dress."

"What! That pleated thing! I can just fancy it."

"Get yourself into a sack then but step you will!"

She tried on several dresses. She surveyed herself critically in the long mirror set in the door. She got unpleasant angles at herself and was aghast, not realizing the unbecoming plumpness until this moment.

Her Awakening

She tore off the gown with a flash of the hot, resentful, young temper. She was in tears when he poked his head in the doorway to say mockingly: "How goes it?"

"Keep out!" She stamped her foot and talked to herself bitterly. No sense in looking like this. Big bumps on her hips—she that had been so lithe and slender! It didn't help the baby any to get slovenly like this!

It was a very nervous, tremulous, indignant companion that Dane Herrick took to the theatre that night. He made it worse by teasing her: "It's not my fault, darling. I told ye to quit lapping up cream and gruel."

"I suppose I like those messy, sticky things! I suppose I drink them out of gluttony!"

He slowed the car and gave her a quick, light kiss: "Poor little kid—tough, isn't it?"

She asked huskily: "Do I look such a fright?"

"No, you don't. You look sweet."

"Well, I don't know why I should care"

"Of course not! Think of your SON!"

She became excited, mingling with the crowds. She was surprised to find her breath choking when the orchestra played and when the curtain went up. She was like a school-girl out for the first time with a likely beau.

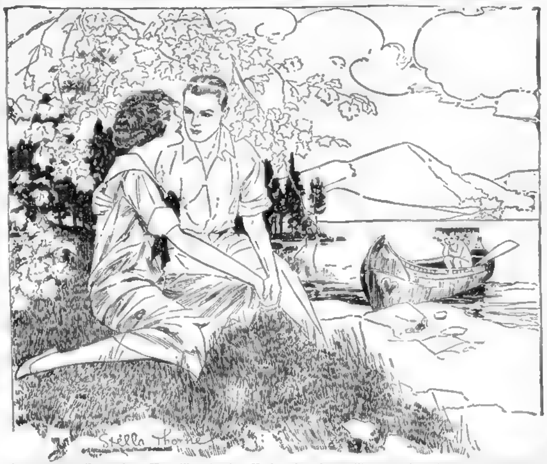
The Patient Pilot Waits

DRAWN BY STELLA THORNE



THE patient pilot waits. He will not stir. He will not shift his gaze. He is concentrating and waiting, for he knows that sooner or later they will see him and—be glad he's waiting. They're ignoring him now—He and She—because they do not know who he is, or at least they're not taking the trouble to find out.

But there will come a time when [illegible]. They'll see the heart on his boat or the wings on his back. A bird will tell them in his song or the clouds will write a message in the sky. Something will happen. Cupid, the pilot, will not wait in vain. And when they come, he'll paddle them o'er magic waters to the land where Life, they will find, just begins.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

THERE are somethings about injuries to the scalp that make them different from injuries to other parts of the body.

The scalp is, normally, covered with hair and in all cases is underlaid with the skull.

In spite of all the care possible, in spite of frequent washings, the hair of the head carries many varieties of germs. It holds a certain number of dead scales, called epithelium, from the outer layer of the skin. It is normally oiled by the secretion from one set and moistened by sweat from another set of little follicles of the scalp. It is being continuously touched by unclean hands and dressed with still more unclean brushes and combs.

You see from these facts why the scalp is always a contaminated field and why, therefore, a wound there is most dangerous. It is at all times more or less exposed to the air.

That means that the force that causes the wound almost invariably forces into it a certain number of germs from the hair.

The best thing that then happens is that the blood rushes from the wound and in doing so tends to wash the germs outward.

In a little while the blood clots, the clot, or plug, thus formed being the cleanest and best dressing that the wound could possibly have. It ought, therefore, never to be disturbed unless the edges of the wound are so far separated that it becomes necessary for the surgeon to draw them together with some stitches.

It is, however, necessary to protect the clot itself from contamination from the hair.

It is for this reason that the hair should be carefully scissored away from the scalp for a distance of half an inch or more each way from the edge of the wound, the remaining longer hair being brushed away in all directions.

The original clot may be washed away with soap and water if it looks contaminated. This should be done with sufficient vigor to provoke a little fresh bleeding, for the purpose of forming a new and uncontaminated clot.

To the area thus exposed should be applied a compress of gauze or linen or cotton, especially sterilized by boiling and saturated with a solution of boric acid, lysol, carbolic acid or corrosive sublimate, but preferably the first named.

This compress should be held in position by bandages, encircling the head and secured, where practicable, by adhesive strips to [illegible] areas.

Having made a good dressing don't disturb it for several days. The wound will then probably be well.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I intend to celebrate my sixteenth birthday with a little party at which I am anxious to have both girls and boys. Can you help me by giving me an idea of how I should write them a note of invitation?

L. A. L.

GLADLY. A short note just giving the necessary information is enough.

"Dear Ted:

"A sixteenth birthday is such an important milestone that I'm not going to let mine go by without having my friends greet it with me. So will you come to celebrate my "anniversary" on Saturday, February the twenty-first? I'm going to have an informal party at my home, and if you'll come in about eight-thirty, Mother and I will be very happy and delighted to welcome you. Will you come?

"Best wishes to you and highest anticipations of seeing you on the twenty-first."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have just received a wedding gift from my fellow employes and am at a loss to know how to address a note to them and just what to say. If you could give me some idea, I would appreciate it very much.

O. N. N.

IT is gracious and polite to write a note to each one, since each one showed you a kind and generous thought. Your note could be something like this:

"Dear Miss Stokes.

"Your beautiful thought of me made me most happy, and the 'collected thought' of all you dear coworkers added a wonderful joy to these days. How graciously kind you are to think of me in such a gloriously friendly way. I was so touched.

And expressing your thought in such a beautiful gift! The after-dinner coffee spoons are very handsome and their beauty will give an 'extra added attraction' to our dinners. Ted and I are very proud of them, and we want you, as soon as you can after our return from our trip, to come to see us and see for yourself how lovely your gift is in our home. We both thank you with all our hearts.

"Best wishes from Ted and me, and the hope to see you soon.

"Very sincerely yours."

My Romantic Husband

A Sequel to "Ways of a Husband"

By Ann Lisle

LUCIE is indeed too puny a figure in the drama and musical comedy to do much to carry the Revue in which Matt Hawley and Bert Frothingham elevated her to be the prima donna. In spite of her vanity she undoubtedly knows this.

And, however much Jim's carefully calculated effect had hurt her, I felt sure that Lucie was willing to sacrifice vanity in the interests of "safety first." And this was assured by Jim's declaration that he was staying away from the opening in order to keep Brooke away.

Now Lucie took refuge in a pout and a defiant:

"I'll show you and the critics opening night! Why—Jim, don't you remember how well we played together in the country club dramatics? Either you're a good actor—or I'm a good actress—or I really struck fire from you for we got the romance and thrills over pretty well!"

"You're a good actress and a most magnetic and alluring little creature," smiled Jim.

"And your neighbor whom you want to protect, and a member of your social group beside, so of course, you don't mind sacrificing yourself to keep Brooke from coming and spoiling my big opportunity," cooed Lucie.

"I told Johnny I thought we could count on you. He's been trying to think up some way of making the most of Brooke's presumable antics if she came and staged a row. But I had an idea you'd think a move ahead of Johnny and keep unpleasant things from happening instead of trying to work out how to trade on them after they had occurred."

Her smile was an infectious thing of flashing teeth, moist lips and wide eyes, but it seemed amazing that even so susceptible a person as Jim should fall for such obvious bunk! Still he did! For he turned to me and asked with a pleasant air of being lord of the manor:

"Wouldn't it be nice if we could get Lucie and Johnny to stay and have dinner with us, Anne? Country Sundays are sleepy affairs unless neighbors drop in like this and pep 'em up."

"Do stay," I said, hating to urge it and hating still more to have Jim force me into a position where I had to let myself in for more of the Tremaine society.

"That's a jolly idea," smiled Johnny. "You go right on vamping old Jim, Lucie, and maybe Anne will retaliate by showing me a good time. I always think she's due to get caught on the rebound some day."

Jim's face darkened at Johnny's words. A little smile tugged at Lucie's lips for a moment and left them as suddenly as if she had put up her hand and turned it off. And then she said with a large air of naivete:

"Have you ever thought of flirting a bit, Anne? I think you'd do it rather well. If you want to try your hand at it, I'll lend Johnny to you whenever you say so."

"That's still jollier," said Johnny. "Thought perhaps Anne is human enough to prefer a [illegible] and who [illegible] dance [illegible] as an amiable person with good technique [illegible]

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax,

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a young man about twenty-eight for almost a year. I am deeply in love with him. He is very [illegible] and is jealous of my going out with other men though he always [illegible] me of it.

He claims that he loves me but he doesn't act the part. Do you think a man knows because he's jealous that he loves a woman?

Last Christmas he didn't send me a gift. That's a long time ago now and I didn't really care about getting the present. But when my friends asked me what I received from him I was so ashamed to admit I received nothing.

Of course he has lots of expenses, but he works steadily and earns a good salary. Don't you think that if he loved me he would have given me something at Christmas time?

UNHAPPY.

THERE is only one proof of a man's love, my dear—his asking you to be his wife. Until a man proves [illegible] [illegible] to think of him as just a friend. [illegible] power to hold her friendship and love.

Your friend, while not under any obligation to send you a gift at Christmas, might have showed appreciation of your friendship by sending flowers, candy, a book, music or a Christmas card. An expensive gift would have been out of place since you're not engaged.

If I were you, I'd refuse to allow this man to monopolize my time or thoughts, since he's not a fiance, but just a friend. I'd go about also with other friends.

DU PONT PANELS MAKE SET BUILDING EASIER

PYRADIOLIN TAKES A WOOD-SCREW WITHOUT SPLITTING. DRILLS AND CUTS AS EASILY AS SOFT PINE.

DU PONT

This wonderful material, Pyradiolin, was developed by Du Pont Engineers with three purposes in mind—to make panels of higher dielectric and hydroscopic properties, of greater beauty, and of far easier workability.

Pyradiolin panels are semi-flexible, and, therefore, fit the slight uneveness of a radio cabinet without the buckling that results when a rigid panel is forced into place. Pyradiolin can easily be worked with ordinary woodworking tools. It is lastingly beautiful; it holds instruments with permanent rigidity.

These panels are OFFICIAL for the new Four-R Receiver. They are individually packed with a cross section working sheet. Your dealer can supply you with du Pont panels of the proper size for the Four-R or in other standard stock sizes—and he can supply Du Pont dials to match. If not, simply phone our Boston office.

BOSTON has shown its appreciation of the marvelous musical quality given radio reception by

Karas Harmonik Transformers

Karas Harmoniks have just one claim to the consideration of the radio public—the beautiful, natural musical quality they impart to radio reception.

Boston people have been quick to recognize this fact. One short month ago Karas Harmoniks were unknown in this city. American radio engineers discovered the extraordinary qualities of this new transformer and adopted it as the exclusive audio transformer for the new American Four-R Receiver. It has been advertised in connection with that splendid new set.

Today Karas Harmoniks are being sold by ALL of the established Radio Dealers in Boston. Hundreds of radio enthusiasts, who are not building the new set, are buying Karas Harmoniks to substitute for the transformers originally built into their sets.

What greater proof could be given that Karas Harmoniks really do what they are claimed to do?—Fully amplify all frequencies and harmonics, and thereby deliver a natural quality of music that satisfies the most exacting of musical critics.

Are YOU going to be content with anything less perfect than the music that Karas Harmoniks will give you? Surely not! See your dealer today. He will show you how easy it is to put Karas Harmoniks in your set.

DYMAC LEADS IN ITS OWN CLASS

By M. A. SIMMONS
TECHNICAL RADIO EDITOR

In general there are available to the public three main classes of loud speakers, namely the five to ten dollar class, the ten to twenty-five, and the twenty-five to forty-five dollar class.

From these various classes we have a large number of makes to choose from. Some are well known to the public because they are nationally advertised products. Generally the average speaker of each class, have simply a phone unit with a horn mounted over it. While these are alright as they go, they are not actually designed for loud speaker work.

In the five to ten dollar class we have the Dymac Loud Speaker primarily designed for loud speaking work. The unit is not simply a phone unit but has all of the characteristics of a more expensive loud speaker.

The horn is of fibre and finished in a black pebbly surface. It has a sufficiently long throat thereby forming a long air column. It is upon the size of the air column and the shape of the horn that we depend for volume and quality. If the air column is short the tone is shallow, if too long the tone then becomes deep and throaty. A medium between these two must be arrived at. A total length of about three feet is generally considered correct according to many authorities. The length of the air column on the Dymac speaker very nearly approaches three feet.

The unit is a specially designed one, and has an adjustment for controlling the position of the magnets. It acts also as a volume control.

In picking out a loud speaker for your own use, the best way would be to hear several of them being used at the same time and on the same station and music. In this way you become your own judge. Then pick out the one you like best for the price you intend to pay.

Many of our tests on the Four-R set have been conducted with the Dymac loud speaker. These tests indicate that this speaker is at the top of its class.

THE DV-3 AND UV 199 TUBES

THE DRY CELL TUBES

The new Four-R receiver has been designed to operate on dry cell tubes of the three volt type. There are on the market today three well known [illegible] the DV-3 and the [illegible] from dry cell batteries the small amount of filament current of a tube now available. The filament current is six one hundredths of an ampere and the filament voltage three.

The batteries required for the tubes are [illegible] less than the filament consumption of a WD-11 or 12, or a UV [illegible] tube.

We would advise [illegible] if you use type [illegible] your set, [illegible] ABSOLUTELY [illegible] have the correct [illegible] doing this. If you [illegible] make a mistake you [illegible] good chance of [illegible]. The best way is to use Re-Vi-Vo [illegible] that is recharging [illegible] necessary but don't run [illegible] any more than you [illegible] storage batteries.

[illegible] Dry Cell "A" and "B" [illegible] cost almost [illegible] ordinary dry cells but [illegible] use of the chemical formula [illegible] they are RE-CHARGEABLE. Operating your set [illegible] Re-Vi-Vos you are sure to get [illegible] the [illegible] themselves [illegible] six to eight times. After each [illegible] arge they come back to strength [illegible] capacity.

[illegible]very radio fan will appreciate [illegible] simplicity and economy of re[illegible] Re-Vi-Vos. It is not neces[illegible] to have expensive equipment or [illegible] training. Simply attach [illegible] battery to the house electric cur[illegible] by means of the series current [illegible] and turn on the current. You [illegible] charge any number from 1 to [illegible] "A" batteries at the same time, [illegible]irect current by connecting them [illegible]he current tap in series.

[illegible]o charge on alternating current [illegible] up a chemical rectifier. You [illegible] use the same amount of current [illegible] either case, as the chemical action [illegible] rectifier permits only half the [illegible]unt of current to pass through [illegible] given length of time. You can [illegible]ge up to 4-45 V "B" batteries [illegible]ltaneously by hooking them up [illegible]arallel. As in the case of "A" [illegible]eries, A.C. requires twice as [illegible]y hours of charge as D.C. and [illegible]ld include a chemical rectifier in [illegible] series.

The instructions, number of [illegible] charging, and wattage of lamp [illegible] current tap are [illegible] distributed with the [illegible]. Recharging your dry cells [illegible] not only a great convenience, but will effect substantial savings.

NICE WORK ON 2 TUBE FOUR-R

On Saturday [illegible] Feb [illegible] American Four R [illegible] was brought to me by a friend [illegible] from the [illegible] diagram. It had been unable to pick up anything except [illegible].

It seems that the mistakes that are being made on this set are all of the same nature, namely the placing of [illegible] the first [illegible] from grid [illegible].

A [illegible] this mistake and [illegible] changes the set was [illegible] up for reception. The following stations greeted the [illegible] speaker WNAC, WJZ, WPG, WGY, WGBS and KDKA.

The rest of the stations were on phones and with excellent volume. No straining of the ears to hear them, and these were WBS, WABC, WHB, WSAI, WGN, WHN, WTAM, WFI, WOR, WLW, CNRO, WJZ, WFAA, WEAF, WNYC, KYW, KSD. Dallas, Texas was very clear and distinct. KYW, KSD however were not very [illegible]. It seems that these two stations are never received with any great amount of volume.

For an inexpensive set that will produce results [illegible] still [illegible] very low cost of [illegible] on the [illegible] this Four R set [illegible] an excellent proposition.

Generally I operate the four tuber and use [illegible] phones. I am very enthusiastic over the [illegible] set [illegible] placed in a small cabinet with all of the batteries and I used [illegible] famous ration panel.

ACID CREEPAGE PREVENTED BY A FEW OIL DROPS

A large number of the present day [illegible] storage B batteries [illegible] when [illegible].

Wash off the top of the cells carefully with water, then scrub thoroughly with an old toothbrush and some baking soda. Rinse with water and [illegible] the top of the cell to dry. Sulphuric acid will collect [illegible] and will not dry off unless neutralized with an alkali.

Now pour a little very light machine oil into each cell. This will float on the top of the electrolite and prevent the acid from creeping and splattering.

Is It Distance You're After?

Then you should get the Simplex DX Tuner. It is designed especially to bring in far-away stations—and bring them in loud and clear.

Full volume and extreme selectivity are obtained because distance between primary and secondary windings gives exactly right amount of coupling. No solution on windings.

Easy to operate. Easy to connect. No soldering; binding posts for all connections. Aluminum bracket castings. All other metal parts brass.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE LIGHT OF ESCAPE

By Mrs. Lily Wandel

ALICE, with a pleased flush of surprise on her soft cheeks, made a lovely picture for his artist's eyes, but the mahogany desk with its basket of letters and telephone jarred the husband in him.

"Flip!" She jumped up to greet him. "This is nice! Actually the first time in my office! I'm pleased as Punch. Now what brings my artist husband into these business surroundings?"

He frowned at his unpolished oxfords. Couldn't she guess, had she been blind to these months or simply pretending not to see his suffering?

Biter Laugh

"Are you ready to give this up? And let me provide for you like any he-man should?" And as she made a weary little gesture with her head, he broke into a bitter short laugh. "You think I can't, but I tell you I can!" He beat the desk with a clenched hand. "I'd work my fingers to the bone for you. I told you that when I married you, Alice." His voice changed to gentle pleading. "Give this up! Come, let's have a home, a real little home with a kitchen where you'll cook a steaming dinner for me when I come home where you'll sit with a bit of sewing and I in a housecoat—"

Alice interrupted with a bubbling little laugh. "Flip! Don't be funny, housecoats are out of style!"

He flushed a dark angry red. "You know very well what I mean—I don't care a rap for a housecoat, it's just a symbol. A man doesn't wear a housecoat in a hotel."

"And your painting, Flip?"

"Evenings and Sundays, Alice. I'll work as I never worked before—"

She shook her pretty head. "You can't do two things well at one time. You'd be tired, your hand would not be steady."

"That's your excuse—to avoid the little I can give you at first. You won't make a sacrifice, you won't give up pretty clothes, luxuries. Oh, what's the use! You say I can't fill two jobs and you're trying to do that yourself—be my wife and a business woman.

Have To Choose

"I tell you, Alice, it's come to a point where you'll have to choose one job or another!" He had not meant to force the issue so soon; he had planned to tell her first how he had tried and tried to work in the studio she paid for and could only think of the humiliating position he was forced into—being supported by his wife.

"Don't let's quarrel, Flip dear." He stared at her. Was she pretending that this crisis of his [illegible] was a petty quarrel? "Hop along like a good boy and get into a better humor. By the way, I won't be home for dinner, a nasty old business meeting early in the evening.

"Why don't you do something to get cheered up until I get home? Oh, that reminds me, Len Packer said the Deerfields are in town; look them up, won't you? George always was such a tonic, and I'm curious to know how that team is trotting together. George so brilliant and Lucy—well, you know Lucy!" She laughed a little.

Yes, he knew Lucy well, he had been engaged to her until Alice, like a fresh March wind, had blown him off his feet. Lucy, a mouse of a girl, a little homemaker if there ever was one! The peace of that engagement period shimmered like a departing star in the distance. And he had thought Alice had some of Lucy's traits—that he could marry her and make a Lucy out of her!

Poor Lucy, married to a man like George Derefield, whose strong personality and brilliance were entirely given over to business ambitions. Macready's hope, they called him, for the millionaire was pushing him ahead to the top of the ladder, and the pushing ahead meant a constant moving from city to city, now in Europe, now in Mexico—always in hotels, entertaining. And George went eagerly, enjoying it. Poor Lucy, little homemaker. He, Philip, could have had her and been happy. He pushed such thoughts angrily away, yet the vision of Lucy with a bit of sewing in a cool cotton frock remained.

Lived in Flat

After all, he looked up the Derefields that evening, more to satisfy his longing to see Lucy again than to follow Alice's suggestion. He was surprised to find that they did not live in a hotel, but in a modest little flat.

Lucy opened the door and Phillip's heart quickened its beat. She had a bit of sewing in her hand and her dress was of soft blue, her mouse-gray eyes as gentle and quiet as ever, her firm little mouth just as sweet. She was asking for Alice and scolding him for going out without his wife when George appeared. For a moment Phillip did not recognize him. He was accustomed to seeing him in a dinner jacket or a well-tailored business suit, but this George wore a housecoat.

Phillip's eyes were glued to the ill-fitting jacket, sleeves too short and the terrible gap at the back of the collar. The housecoat annoyed Phillip. He could not concentrate on the conversation, and before he had been seated very long in the tiny living room that reminded one with various aromas that a steaming, home-cooked dinner had been served shortly before, he had a wild desire to tear it off George's back.

He left early. George's restlessness was contagious. Not that George had fidgeted, he had set perfectly quiet in that terrible coat, but something in his eye, Phillip could not make it out, was moving, wandering restlessly.

Back in the lobby of his hotel Philip sat smoking, puzzled, wondering—no longer thinking of Lucy but of George. It was Len Packer, Alice's old friend, who aroused him. Philip led the conversation to the Derefields.

"Len, I didn't want to ask any questions, but it seemed they lived there quite some time, and ordinarily George was not more than a few weeks in a place, or is this the top of the ladder—this little rear flat in the Bronx?"

Left Macready's

"George left Macready's," Len explained. "Lucy had to have a home—a regular home. She couldn't stand moving from place to place, the new people, the entertaining and all that. I think George tried to tell her that in a few years, at the most a half a dozen, Macready would give him some permanent charge, that he was working up to that.

"But Lucy felt that a life of flitting from place to place, mixing with people not always up to her standards, was endangering the morale of their home life, or some such stuff. She simply was not equal to the sacrifice. George took a position with a broker—he's not suited for that work and is not making good. All I hope is that he wakes up before Macready has found a man to take his place."

"He had the look of a man about to awaken—and it was contagious," Phillip said in a curiously pleased voice.

Len lit another cigarett and frowned. "Never know what's real in a girl until she marries. There's Alice—who always was fussing with dolls and cook stoves, taking a domestic science course and having a hope chest, and boring a fellow to death about her future housekeeping. Tell the truth, Flip, Alice was too domestic to please me. But look at her grit—ready to make a sacrifice, going into business and making good. But then, we all knew it's only a short while, until you get your start. A man with your talent, naturally, Alice sees what a future you have. You'll be doing illustrations for the big magazines before long."

"You just bet I will!" Phillip told him in positive tones as he jumped up. "Give me six more months and Alice will have a chance to use all that domestic science knowledge in her own kitchen! Good night, Len!"

As he opened the door of their room, Alice, rumpled, tear-stained, slipped into his arms as if she had been waiting right there before the door for him to appear. "Flip" she whispered, "I've been thinking it over and perhaps I'm all wrong, anyway, I want you happy. I'm going to give up business—"

"Alice, don't you see that I've been blind? Tomorrow I'm going to paint as I have never painted before! And, dearest, if you'll carry on just a little longer and be patient with me for a few more months, then we'll have our little home founded on your sacrifice."

He tilted back her pretty head so he could look deep into her happy eyes. "I'm heartily ashamed of myself, dear," he told her shakily. "I see things very clearly now." He wanted to tell her more—but then he knew Alice understood—that he realized the shimmering departing star that had tormented him had been but a will-o-wisp to lead him into the swamp of failure and that Alice was his bright light of escape.

OPPOSED TO ALL PAIN

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE stage door Johnnies in New York City have formed an organization. They are demanding chorus girls with bigger hearts and smaller appetites.

THEY also want the girls to do less riding and more walking.

THEY'RE planning to spend all Summer getting the Ziegfeld chorus used to street cars.

THIS is for the good of the girls. With so many holdups going on a trolley is much safer than a taxicab.

AND besides, a girl's escort doesn't have to tip the motorman.

IN a taxicab they're by themselves but on a street car there are usually several other passengers and this prevents the John and his lady friend from getting lonesome.

THIS organization isn't going to stop inviting these stage beauties to restaurants, but they're going to start taking them to cheaper ones.

ONE of the strictest rules is that a chorus girl must eat six meals a week at home.

AND if she hasn't got a home she should go out and find one.

ANOTHER rule is that no chorus girl can ask her escort for an automobile until she has known him for three years.

AND even then she has to start with a Ford and work her way up to a Rolls Royce.

THIS rule only applies to motor cars. She's allowed to beg for a fur coat the first week.

Drive the INDICAN Out of Your System

—the Danger Sign of Constipation

WARNING: INDICAN shows that your blood is clogged with toxic poisons, due to constipation. Any day these may result in severe breakdown and disease. They often lead to rheumatism and heart and lung affections.

Whether you are constipated or not, every man and woman should immediately make this test to guard his health:

Have an analysis made of your specimen, and if the chemist reports the presence of INDICAN—or if you can "feel" how poisoned you are because of headache, sallow complexion, no appetite and bad stomach—immediately start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills. Next, have another test made and see how the INDICAN disappears. With freedom from constipation poisons, come freedom from complexion blemishes—you eat well, sleep well, and feel fit, in most cases.

Doctors find that many "run down" nervous people simply are "doped" with constipation poisons, as indicated by the INDICAN TEST.

Here is the same person after a few days' treatment by Carter's Little Liver Pills—note the clean, normal specimen, FREE FROM INDICAN.

Note: Carter's Little Liver Pills, used for 67 years by millions of people all over the world, is a purely vegetable preparation and contains no drugs of any nature. It therefore acts in a natural way and is not habit-forming. Money refunded if results are not satisfactory.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

BEACON FOR YOUR CHILD

By Carolyn Lisberge

A WOMAN who ranks as one of the highest salaried of her sex in the country said to me: "When I was a little girl my grandfather lived with mother and me. He was one of the generals with Stonewall Jackson. Mother used to chide me. 'Marguerite, don't hold your head so high.'

"Then grandfather would say: 'Let her hold it high. That is the way I want her to face the world, holding it high always.'

"I had such admiration for grandfather's bravery and the readiness he had shown to meet any fate, that I respected whatever he said. When I grew up and took a job I often thought of his words.

"When my work seemed to offer overmastering trouble and I was tempted to give it up as failure, I would remember grandfather's words: 'Hold your head high.' Of course, I could not do that if I let work or people defeat me. So his command became my spur and my stimulant. The thought of it kept me from giving up a task many a time until I had made a success of it."

Thus, too, one ideal presented to a child, or one moral command stressed again and again, can do more for a youngster than all the commandments preached daily. A child is taught so many facts, given so many rules of conduct, he does not know which to pick out as important.

But if one in particular is emphasized by mother or father that may be the guide post to future actions. Especially if the child has some dramatic association with the idea will it be of immeasurable influence.

I recall the only moral lesson ever given me by my father. He said: "Always keep your self-respect." That was enough. For whenever I had to decide upon one course of action versus another that one command of his was the best test as to the wisdom of my choice. If I acted in a certain way would I retain my self-respect? Or contrariwise?

It is a splendid plan for parents to give consideration to the idea that would inculcate above all others in their children. Then, find out the best way to bring it home to their young minds.

Something About Herrings.

By Foxy Grandpa.

WE sat down to breakfast one morning in Glasgow, Scotland. Bobby was dressed up in a kilt and even Bunny had on a Scotch bonnet with the ribbons falling down between his ears.

"I'll have to be Scotch, too," I laughed, looking at the waiter. "You may bring me a kipper."

"A kipper," repeated Bobby. "Is it something to wear?"

"No," I answered, "something very good to eat."

"Fish, flesh or fowl?" asked Bobby.

"Fish—a kippered herring," I answered.

"I'll try one, too," said Bobby.

"We'll go out some day with the fishermen and see them catch these fellows, Bobby. You know they catch them in great numbers with huge nets. It is a great industry up here on the coast of Scotland."

Soon after that we were on the ship out in the Irish Sea. It was a clear Summer evening. Suddenly at a short distance from the ship the sea seemed to turn into silver—yes silver.

"What is it?" asked Bobby. "Isn't it beautiful?"

"School of herring—too bad; that would be a good catch. Some fellows are losing money this night," said the captain.

We stood fascinated with the shining phosphorescence of this great mass of fish.

"Look how long that school is," I exclaimed.

"Yes," said the Scotch skipper. Often those columns of herrings are five and six miles long and three and four miles wide. Hark!"

We listened. Surely it was not raining. It was so clear. What was that noise like falling rain?

"That's the herrings," said the captain. "They make that noise when they lift their heads out of the water. If it were daylight, you would see the ocean covered with bubbles. They're funny fish."

"Tell me about them," I said, as we stood by the rail and looked at the sea sparkling as if it were set with precious jewels.

"To begin with," said the Scotchman, "every female herring lays from twenty-one to sixty-eight thousand eggs."

"Whew!" said Bunny, who is always interested in large families.

"Yes, and they are mysterious in a way—those fish. You know that often you will hear a Scotchman say, 'The herring have cracked.' That means they have disappeared as quickly as they have swarmed. Some old people believe they hear a sound like the shot of a pistol. I've never heard it, but that is what they say."

"Whether they make noises like guns or not, there certainly is an army of them."

"That's how they got their name, Bobby," said I, "from the German word 'Heer,' meaning army."

"A soldier for breakfast tomorrow," said Bobby, smiling, and then maybe I'll be able to run as fast as Nurmi. That's what he eats."

"Get" Colds Quick!

—Don't Wait For Chills

WHEN you feel a cold beginning, take hot lemonade. Then go straight to bed, under warm covers.

You'll perspire, but in nine cases out of ten the cold will go.

In the morning there won't be a trace.

Thus, over night, you'll save days of sickness and their cost together with the dangers of pneumonia, "flu" and other ills that often follow colds.

Millions profit in untold ways by this measure of prevention.

But they "get" the colds before the colds "get them."

If you are sneezing, if you ache, take hot lemonade tonight, and cheat the cold. It's the cheapest, simplest, surest, safest way.

Just squeeze the juice of a lemon in glass or cup of hot water. The effectiveness of hot lemonade is due to more than its heat. Add sugar if you wish.

Ask for California lemons, the tart, juicy, practically seedless kind. They make the most effective lemonade for colds.

CAR & FOUNDRY PRESIDENT IS FOUNDRYMAN

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

President William H. Woodin of American Car & Foundry Company, just now especially in the limelight because his company plans to change its common stock from 300,000 to 600,000 shares, is one of the nation's most surprising business executives.

Wm. H. Woodin

When he went into the family shops to learn the business his father promised him $500 for the first good car wheel made entirely by him. In about six weeks the young man was ready for the test. He had to make the mold, also the core, and run the mixture without assistance. Word of the promise had gone around the foundry and all 400 men employed there quit work one afternoon to see the boss' son make his wheel.

It was trying work with that expert crowd of spectators, but Woodin controlled his nerve, poured the molten metal with a steady hand, and, subsequent tests proving the work was good, pocketed his reward. In the three years he spent in the plant Woodin became an expert foundryman and machinist and is still able if necessary to hold his own with the best in any of these jobs.

Mr. Woodin is a lover of fine pictures and books, a collector of coins and a player of the guitar and other instruments. He is an enthusiastic golfer and fisherman.

When America entered the World War in April, 1917, the Navy Department asked for fifty flat cars in a hurry. Several concerns sent in bids, but were unable to promise delivery for six weeks or more. Woodin promised to have the cars ready in ten days, and kept his promise, although he was just as busy as his competitors. The difference was this. He realized keenly that the country was at war, and he knew what war meant. Other customers of the company had deliveries promised them. Well, Woodin said, they'd have to wait, that was all. He took parts for other orders here and there and assembled them and the cars were in service in a little over a week.

Although statistics show that street railway traffic from year to year over a long period has pursued a gradual upward trend, the great fluctuations by hour, day and week are factors that make operation difficult and are not generally appreciated even by those actually engaged in transportation service.

For instance, on the Boston Elevated, riding varies during the hours of the day from normal base traffic of 45,106 revenue passengers per hour to 115,197 revenue passenger in the evening rush, an increase of 155.4 per cent., to a minimum traffic in the early morning (night car) service. From this low point, traffic again climbs to the morning rush hour peak.

From Monday to Friday, daily traffic approximates an average of 1,103,861 revenue passengers. On Saturdays, however, the average rises to 1,216,132, increase over normal 9.37 per cent., and on Sundays drops 43.17 per cent. below normal, or to 630,755 revenue passengers.

In the monthly variations during the year 1924 low point of traffic volume is found in August, with 27,640,267 revenue passengers, then rising to high points in December and March at 34,366,690 revenue passengers, increase of 25 per cent.

Over a 25-year period, the trend is decidedly upward. Starting at 1900, 203,521,121 revenue passengers were carried. Number increased each succeeding year to 1917 when 381,017,333 passengers were carried. Subsequently, period of recession was experienced until in 1924 a new high record of 382,888,848 revenue passengers was reached.

$30,000,000
United States Rubber Company
6½% Serial Gold Notes

Maturing in fifteen annual instalments of $2,000,000 each from March 1, 1926 to March 1, 1940, both inclusive.

Coupon notes in $1,000 denominations, registerable as to principal. Interest payable March 1 and September 1.

All, but not a part, of any one or more of the maturities then outstanding redeemable on March 1, 1930, or on any interest date thereafter, on sixty days' previous notice, upon payment of their principal amount and a premium of ½% for each six months between the redemption date and the date of maturity.

C. B. Seger, Esq., Chairman of the Board of the United States Rubber Company, in a letter dated February 25, 1925, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned, writes in part as follows:

"The United States Rubber Company, incorporated in 1892, is engaged, directly or through its subsidiaries, in the manufacture of rubber goods of all kinds, including waterproof footwear, pneumatic and solid tires, mechanical goods, druggists' supplies, insulated wire, and practically all other goods that are made from rubber, there being over fifty factories situated in the United States and Canada. The business is well balanced, sales of footwear and tires representing about one-third each, while mechanical goods, druggists' sundries and other miscellaneous products make up substantially another third.

The Company controls, through the General Rubber Co. (whose entire capital stock it owns), the largest rubber plantations in the world, located in Sumatra and on the Malay Peninsula. These properties comprise a total of about 111,000 acres, of which about 71,000 acres have been planted and about 46,000 acres of the planted areas are in production.

These Serial Notes are to be issued for the sole purpose of replacing bank loans, and the amount to be provided by this note issue, together with other available funds, will enable the Company to take up all bank loans presently outstanding, thus providing in a more permanent form for carrying a part of the Company's inventories and other current assets. This issue should place the Company in such a position that it will be unnecessary to borrow from the banks, except for a part of each year when the Company will need additional funds for its seasonal requirements. On Dec. 31, 1924, the bank loans of the Company amounted to $31,490,000, having been reduced from $61,205,000, the high point, on Nov. 20, 1920, entirely in the regular course of business, there having been no special financing for this purpose during the period.

The current surplus earnings of the Company should amply provide for the serial instalments of these Notes. Furthermore, the net receipts of the Company's rubber plantations, above described, the earnings from which have not been included in the Company's earnings for the reason that they have been used in the development of the properties, will henceforth be available. It is estimated that, based upon present costs and market prices for crude rubber, such receipts from these plantations will alone be sufficient to meet the entire amount of the annual instalments of these serial Notes.

For the last three years the net income of the Company and its subsidiaries, applicable to the payment of its interest charges (after depreciation of plants and before Federal income taxes) was as follows:

1922	$14,263,000
1923	13,860,000
1924 (partly estimated)	15,743,000

while interest on the Company's entire funded debt, including the interest on this new issue of 6½% Serial Gold Notes, amounts to about $6,666,000 per annum, to which should be added approximately $300,000 for interest on seasonal borrowings. These figures of earnings do not include the income from the plantations hereinbefore mentioned.

Charges aggregating $4,230,000 were made against surplus in the three years above mentioned, representing adjustments of certain items in the inventories both here and abroad, all of which applied to operations prior to 1922. As of December 31, 1924, inventories of finished goods were valued at cost of production, which in all cases was substantially below the cost of replacement at the market prices for raw materials. Inventories of raw materials and supplies were valued at cost prices, which were substantially below market prices. Contractual liabilities, representing forward commitments for raw materials and supplies, were at prices substantially below market, and as to quantities covered future requirements for conservative periods.

As of Dec. 31, 1924, and after applying the proceeds of this Note issue, the net current assets of the Company and its subsidiaries amounted to about $102,000,000, of which about $40,000,000 represented the amount of cash and current accounts and notes receivable, less current accounts payable, while about $62,000,000 represented inventories of finished goods, materials, supplies and goods in process of manufacture.

The United States Rubber Company has paid annual dividends of 8% since 1905 on its Preferred Stock, of which $65,110,000 par value is now outstanding in the hands of the public.

The 6½% Serial Gold Notes will be the direct obligation of the United States Rubber Company and in the Indenture under which they are to be issued the Company will covenant that no mortgage other than the First and Refunding Mortgage dated February 15, 1917, will be placed upon any of its properties or assets, or its subsidiary companies' properties or assets, unless the Notes of this issue then outstanding shall be secured equally and ratably with any other obligations secured under such new Mortgage.

The Company will also covenant in the Indenture that it will not pledge any of its assets, or permit any of its subsidiary companies, as defined in the Indenture, to pledge any of their assets, or declare or pay dividends upon its stock of any class, unless, after such pledge, or as the case may be, the payment of such dividend, the value of the current assets of the Company and its subsidiary companies, all as defined in the Indenture, shall be equal to at least twice all outstanding indebtedness of the Company and its subsidiary companies other than bonds then issued and outstanding under the First and Refunding Mortgage of the Company, dated February 15, 1917, notes secured by pledge of such First and Refunding Bonds, and the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co., Ltd., 6% Gold Bonds, due October 1, 1946. The Company will also covenant that it will not declare or pay any dividend on its common stock, unless after giving effect to such dividend, the unencumbered current assets of the Company and its subsidiary companies, all as defined in the Indenture, will exceed the total aggregate indebtedness of every description of the Company and its subsidiaries."

FINANCE

BY B. C. FORBES

Nothing is ever settled until it is settled right.

This truth our railroad managers should take to heart—and stop putting men to work seven days a week and every week of the year.

* * *

Years ago one of my friends was driver of a Borden's milk wagon. Everybody liked him. He had served his customers faithfully and cheerily for many years—every day of the week, every week of the year. He had to leave his home at 2 o'clock every morning, in all sorts of weather, and, as already said, he worked every week-day, every Sunday, every holiday.

Suddenly he ceased coming.

I visited his home and made investigations. Only then did I learn of the unbearable drudery and strain of his existence. Something within him—human nature—had rebelled, and he had taken to drink. This led to other shortcomings, and he was dismissed.

Well, I wrote a column severely condemning Borden's for working their men seven days every week and warning them that if they did not voluntarily correct this evil, others would step in and compel them to do it. I suggested that the company make a start by arranging to relieve each man at least one day a month and progress towards a day off every week.

Borden's immediately visited me to convince me that the men did not want any days off, neither one a month nor one a week, because they would thus lose a certain amount of their commission. I told them they did not understand human nature. They were sure I was wrong.

"Will you attend a meeting at one of our branches and see for yourself that the men will vote against taking any days off?" they challenged.

I did, and when the general manager put the question to them they voted overwhelmingly in favor of days off.

Unfortunately, effective action was not taken, with the result that later union leaders took up the cause, and New York was subjected to all the horrors of a strike and a "milk famine," as many parents of babies have bitter cause to remember.

* * *

I predict that unless railroad managers take steps to abolish the seven-day work week, they, too, will be responsible for bringing on a strike of unforeseenable gravity.

* * *

Letters continue to come from railway workers in every part of the country who protest against the drab, monotonous life they are doomed to lead under the seven-day work week, with little or no time to enjoy the companionship of their families, no opportunities for normal social intercourse, no possibility of attending worship, no chance for travel, no nothing, as one worker put it, but work, work, work, until they lose track of the days of the week and have to be reminded when Sunday comes around.

* * *

Will those railroad managers who think seven-day work weeks are good enough for American citizens and voters please stand up and be counted?

$30,000,000 NOTES SOLD

To refund bank loans United States Rubber Company has sold to Kuhn, Loeb & Company, $30,000,000 6½ per cent 15-year serial notes.

While the annual report of United States Rubber will not be released until some time next week, it is understood that sales for the year amounted to approximately $172,000,000 and that the decrease of about $14,000,000 as compared with 1923 was principally in waterproof footwear, due to unfavorable weather conditions, and partly in mechanical goods, due to general business conditions. Tire sales and profits showed improvement over 1923.

Net income from operations is expected to run slightly over $9,000,000 after interest and all other charges including depreciation of plant. This compares with $7,392,000 after charges, including taxes, in 1923.

Dividends on the $65,110,000 8 per cent. preferred outstanding in 1924 amounted to $5,208,800, leaving approximately $3,800,000 for surplus. It is estimated that federal taxes will amount to approximately $700,000.

The final surplus of $3,100,000 is equivalent to 3.83 per cent on $81,000,000 common stock, compared with 2.31 per cent in 1923.

Current bank loans amounted to about $31,500,000 as of December [illegible], 1924, a reduction of about $6,700,000 for the year.

CAVE VICTIM'S BROTHERS AND FATHER ROW

Three Sons Say Lee Collins' Mind Is Gone; Oppose Him as Executor

Munfordville, Ky., Feb. 26.—Three brothers of Lloyd Collins, who lost his life when pinned by a boulder while exploring the recesses of Sand Cave, near Cave City, have filed petitions in the Hart County court to have their father, Lee Collins, disqualified as administrator of the victim's estate. The case will be heard today.

The estate consists principally of Floyd's half interest in Crystal Cave, owned jointly with Lee Collins.

The brothers, Homer, Marshall and Andy Lee, allege in their petitions that their father is "non-compos mentis." Grief because of his son's death and his age are stated to be contributing factors to the aged father's alleged condition.

Philadelphia, Feb. 26 (Universal).—No society wedding for Sylvia V. R. Strong, debutante daughter of the late Allan H. Strong, solicitor-general for the Pennsylvania railroad. So she rode over to Elkton, Maryland, with Park R. Reed of Haverford, clerk in the Philadelphia office of the Bell Telephone Company, and had the bonds tied there.

The bride's mother was Susan Delancey Van Rensselaer, member of an old New York family; and the groom is the son of Captain John Reed, army officer. The bride gave her age as twenty and the bridegroom said he was one year older.

"My only objection is that they are so young," said the elder Mrs. Reed afterwards. "They had known each other for a long time and had told me more than once that they were engaged. But I thought it was only a boy and girl affair."

HOUSE TURNS DOWN CO-OPERATIVE MARKET

Pres. Coolidge Interested

So Are the People—More Than General Mitchell

Brigadier-General Mitchell, second in rank in the air service of the United States, is really interested in his work and in his country.

He told members of Congress and others some truths that the people needed to know. Now it is said that he is to be "disciplined," left to the mercy of those whose incompetency he exposed.

HOW is he to be disciplined, and for what? It is said that Secretary Weeks, head of the army, under Coolidge, thinks General Mitchell has talked too much.

If Secretary Weeks had DONE a little more, it wouldn't be necessary for General Mitchell and others to talk.

Secretary Weeks isn't important. The people didn't elect him to any office.

But they did elect President Coolidge.

And they expect President Coolidge to see to it that a really able officer like Brigadier-General Mitchell, competent and courageous as he proved in the war, is protected in the discharge of his duty.

The part of every honest American's duty is to tell the truth as it is needed, and to warn the people about conditions when they need warning.

If the unbelievable should happen, and President Coolidge should allow General Mitchell to be humiliated, it would be a good idea for General Mitchell to resign, get out of the army, which doesn't give much chance to a flying man, anyhow, and see if he can't find a job in which the flying man willing to fly can fly, and in which a man anxious to be of use to his country can be useful to his country.

There ought to be some State, municipality or individual corporation sufficiently interested in the flying question to occupy Brigadier-General Mitchell usefully. Some individual or State, at least, should see to it that General Mitchell has a year or two to turn around and select the best way of being useful outside of government service and without any loss of income.

It is bad enough for the government to do nothing about supplying an adequate air force for this country.

To punish a brave and able man for telling the truth would be going a little too far in the direction of asininity.

Abolish Pullman Surcharge

It Is Foolish, Wasteful and Unjust

Congress ought to abolish the surcharge on Pullman car tickets. Common sense and the public interest demand it, also the interest of the Pullman car company and of the railroads themselves, although they don't know it.

In a moment of war excitement, when anything could be done, fifty per cent. was added to the cost of travel in Pullman cars. And the fifty per cent. was turned over to the railroads. It amounts to some $40,000,000 a year.

The Interstate Commerce Commissioners say the railroads are entitled to the money. They may be entitled to more money, but, if so, the money should be found somewhere else. To discourage the use of sleeping cars is an injustice to the public health and a foolish extravagance.

The railroads, as can easily be proved, are hauling a great many cars empty, or practically empty, because the people will not pay the increased price.

On the fast express trains, Pullman cars travel with all the upper berths unoccupied. Those that care nothing about a fifty per cent. extra charge insist on a lower berth. Those that cannot afford the extra charge sit up in a day coach. Half the weight of a Pullman car is hauled without producing any revenue.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, in a speech in the Senate, clearly demonstrated the foolishness of this unwise and harmful charge. It ought to be abolished, and if the railroads need and deserve $40,000,000 more, the Interstate Commerce Commission won't have any trouble showing them some way to get that money.

As it is, the railroads already derive an income in excess of ten millions from the Pullman Company, through the system that allows railroads to share the profits of the Pullman Company.

And, what is more, the greatest part of the surcharge does not go to the railroads at all, it simply goes to the government, or it does if the railroads give an honest accounting of their receipts.

The greater part of the expensive Pullman car travel takes place on the railroads that are highly profitable, earning above the fixed percentage. Consequently, in the case of those railroads, to cut off the Pullman car surcharge would merely be to cut down the amount of excess profits that the railroads ought to pay to the government.

The government certainly doesn't want to put a tax on the six million people, commercial travelers and others, that use the Pullman cars constantly because they are compelled to do so, not for their pleasure or "luxury," but for substantial business reasons, useful to the country.

This is a big nation, and the most important thing is for the labor people to travel up and down in it, become acquainted with it, do business in it, AS COMFORTABLY AND AS CHEAPLY AS POSSIBLE.

You can send a letter from Key West to Nome, in Alaska, for two cents. We have brains enough to know that communication by mail should be kept up freely and cheaply.

Some day we shall have brains enough to know that proportionately cheap communication by rail, by sleeping car, and later by airplane, would be just as beneficial as cheap mail.

One step that should be taken now is immediate cancellation of that surcharge, which means discomfort for the people that can't afford to pay it, irritation and unnecessary expense to those that can afford it, waste in hauling empty or half-empty Pullman cars, with no real profit for the railroads.

If the railroads need that money, and if it is right for them to have it, let them get it in some other way, without putting a penalty on those that travel at night, thus doubling the value of their time, enabling them to do six days work a week, instead of three. This applies to all commercial travelers and to thousands of others.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

My Son, I charge thee, keep not a damsel's heart TOO long in cold storage, lest another take pity upon her, and thaw it out.

For, a little coolness piqueth a woman's vanity and giveth an edge to her interest; but continued indifference dulleth her illusions and chilleth her enthusiasm.

Helen Rowland

As paprika to the salad-dressing, so is a short absence; it lendeth pep and color to the dullest romance.

But, he that remaineth away one whole week without word or letter is as a photographic proof in the sunlight. His image fadeth from the imagination.

Sweeter than a ukulele by moonlight is a man's perfect devotion; but he that calleth a damsel on the telephone BEFORE breakfast is as cold coffee and soggy waffles on the morning after—exceeding deadly.

As pearl powder to the nose, so is a little jealously, exceeding flattering. But a man that demandeth to know WHERE a woman spendeth all her evenings, and frowneth upon every man that casteth eyes upon her, is as a tight dancing slipper, or a pebble in the shoe—too painful to be endured.

Cut flowers are ofttimes better than an apology, and acts of contrition more convincing than an explanation. But, he that repenteth, yet REPEATETH the offence is as last year's hat, hopeless and ready for the discard.

The Sage hath said "In vino veritas." Yet, pin not thy faith to any man's promises, my Daughter, after his second glass; for thou shalt not find a steel rivet strong enough to stand the strain.

Even as a belt that saggeth and teareth a hole in the blouse, will he break his word, and mutilate thine illusions. For, a man whose head goeth around, loveth ANY woman who is near at hand.

Tell not any man the WHOLE truth; for he cannot swallow it. But the half thereof is as honey to his palate. Therefore, if thou lovest him, say not, "I adore thee!" but only, "Thou INTERESTETH me!"

For, every man will double the meaning of all thy words, and his vanity will add the other half thereto.

And the woman who loveth him not at all is a "dud," while the woman who loveth him much is a bore. But the woman who loveth him just a LITTLE is a delight unto his soul and a comfort to his spirit.

For, in his simplicity, he knoweth not that there is NO SUCH WOMAN!

SELAH.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

He who seeks repentance for the past should woo the angel virtue for the future.

* * *

One impulse from a vernal wood
May teach you more of man,
Of moral evil and of good,
Than all the ages can.
—Wordsworth.

Some read to think, these are rare; some to write, these are common; and some read to talk and these form the great majority.

* * *

Take it to be a principle of life not to be too much addicted to one thing.

* * *

Nothing can be purchased which is better than a firm friend.

* * *

Men are born with two eyes, but with one tongue, in order that they should see twice as much as they say.

* * *

We see how much a man has and, therefore, we envy him. Did we see how little he enjoys, we should rather pity him.

* * *

So many of us fail to realize that vicious actions are not hurtful because they are forbidden, but forbidden because they are hurtful.

* * *

Of all human actions, pride seldomest obtains its end, for, aiming at honor and reputation, it reaps contempt and derision.

It is hardly possible to suspect another without having in one's self the seeds of baseness the party is accused of.

THE RYHMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SUCH rainbow wishes as I make, such lovely, secret things, they fill the day with golden light, with song and whir of wings. They make a garden-spot of Earth, though none but I may know how sweet my wishes are to me, how flower-like they grow. Because I wish for happiness with sunbright rays to shine, across each fellow-traveler's path and make it bright as mine. And by the ever-changing sea I wish that I might stray when twilight mists come creeping up to veil the face of day. I wish for sweet and shining hours, for rare and precious books for bird-songs' wistful melody in hidden woodland nooks. And last, best wish of all I make, more dear than song or sea, to have one true and loving heart to share each joy with me.

INVENTIONS MOSTLY TIME SAVERS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ALMOST all modern inventions are eventually used for the purpose of saving time.

Mr. B. C. Forbes in his column gives us an interesting list of these time savers.

It includes electricity, the cinema, the airplane, the mechanical harvester and the like.

It will be found that the cotton gin, power loom, shoe making machinery, the sewing machine, washing machine, steam drill, electric iron, dish washing machine, mimeograph, telephone, telegraph and subway are fundamentally valuable because they save time.

Time savers release the activity of the race from being occupied with menial tasks to be devoted to better things.

It has been often said that every one of these inventions turned a certain number of men out of work. They do this, but they re-employ the men at better jobs and at better wages.

The locomotive threw an infinite number of hostlers and horse tenders out of their employment, but re-employed them as brakemen, conductors and the like.

These men have an opportunity of living better lives, have more leisure and more comforts.

"Business," says Mr. Forbes, "may have its faults; it does have its faults. But let us in all fairness never forget that business is largely responsible for enriching our lives by saving us time and providing us with the abundance of necessaries, comforts and luxuries which we Americans enjoy in greater measure than any people on the face of the earth."

It used to take a great deal of time to communicate with people by messenger, which is now all saved by the use of the telephone and telegraph.

It is now taking much time to reach the Pacific coast from the Atlantic by train, which will soon be cut short by the use of the airplane.

The United States is a great mixer of peoples. And the mixture is made more complete by the ease and rapidity of travel and by the quick communication of thought.

There is much said about the modern man's not having as much leisure as the man of former time. As a matter of fact he has more leisure. Only he gets more done before he rests.

One reason why he is so efficient is because of his ingenuity in invention and in training the powers of nature to do work that was formerly done by human power.

The time is coming, and it is not far distant, when all the menial work of the race will be done by the inanimate forces, and the power of all men will be released to devote itself to social progress.

BEAUTY OF AMERICAN GEOGRAPHIC NAMES

By Garrett P. Serviss

WHEN I lay open before me on my desk an atlas showing the United States in checkered colors, and glance from high-perched Maine, and the prancing Empire State, and broad-based Pennsylvania, and the pyramidal Virginias, and square-shouldered Ohio, and lake-embraced Michigan, and the great States of the mighty Mississippi valley and of the flowering Southland, and vast Texas pivoting the whole Union, and Colorado bestriding the mountain-spine of the continent, with her proud sisters of the golden tresses, and tall, pactolian California breasting the Pacific side by side with Oregon and Washington—there comes on the surge of patriotic pride, while I gaze, a little breeze of triumph over the originality of the names that decorate this galaxy of unified republics.

For the most part, thank God, we have named ourselves. Greater even than he who writes the songs of a nation is he who bestows its names. Where we have not taken over the impressive and euphonious Indian appellations for places, rivers, mountains and lakes, we have been happy in the invention of names that are attractive and dignified in form, sounds and suggestion. "Virginia," "Florida," "Pennsylvania," "Louisiana," "Maryland," "Carolina," "Georgia"—how beautiful these are; and they are not the less acceptable because they date from Colonial times and enshrine the early history of our country.

New York was unfortunate! Both the city and the State had fine Indian names to select from; but Dutch and English settlers alike were insensible to anything except memories of the lands and places that they had left behind them.

Between "New Amsterdam" and "New York," between "Fort Orange" and "Albany" there was not much to choose. Would that there had been someone who could look forward and glimpse the wonder of the future!

To the Indians our debt is greatest, though they must share it with those who had the good sense to utilize the material which the red men had unconsciously prepared for them. The excellence of the Indian system of geographical nomenclature was that it was based not on a vain desire to immortalize some passing individual of their species, but on a recognition of the peculiar or distinctive features and qualities of places.

Owing to the relative rudeness of their lives and customs and the humility of their mental attainments, the literal meanings of the names that they bestowed were often very matter-of-act and inelegant.

This was not always so, however, for some of their names were highly poetic. And almost all of them, as they have come down to us attached to streams, mountains, lakes, etc., are musical and at least suggestive of poetic signification.

What could be more admirable as geographical names than "Ontario," "Susquehanna," "Tennessee," "Minnehaha," "Juniata," "Dakota," "Tocoma," "Oneonta," "Shasta," "Katahdin," "Monadnock," "Tallyhassee," "Unadilla," "Genessee," "Mississippi," "Michigan," "Wisconsin," "Minnesota," "Iowa," "Kentucky"—and literally thousands of others, some of which are even more beautiful or impressive.

I think it it a great pity that opposition still exists in Congress to the restoration of one of the finest of these old native names, that of "Tacoma," once borne by the magnificent snow-clad mountain at the head of Puget Sound, but displaced by "the National Geographic Board," on the ground that a British naval captain Vancouver, sailing along the Pacific Coast, and spying the huge white peak afar, at once, without trying to explore it, or to find out what the natives who had lived near it for generations called it, decided to compliment his friend Rainier, another British naval officer, who had been engaged in war with the American colonies, by fixing his obscure name upon this great mountain.

The vaunted "right" of a discoverer to give whatever name pleases him to the thing discovered, without regard to its original name, is very questionable on general grounds, and particularly so in this case, when the "discovery" was merely an accidental glimpse of a far inland peak seen from the sea. Tacoma is a beautiful and appropriate name; Rainier is insignificant and misplaced.

ONCE-OVERS

GIVE THE MAN UNDER YOU A FAIR SHOW

Are you giving the man under you a fair show?

Because you fear he might take your position are you as niggardly as possible in assisting him?

If you can, you adopt his ideas and present them to the firm as your own—steal them—for that is what it amounts to.

In speaking of this man you do it in a deprecatory manner, don't you?

How often do you tell the boss of the good work this man performs?

Do you display a spirit of letting the man under you advance as fast as he can?

He has ability and even if you cannot reach the job ahead why keep a good man out of it?

Sooner or later the man with ability will forge ahead.

If you have given him a square deal, he is likely to remember it.

You may need his assistance in the future.

He may be in a position to do you more harm than good.

If you are square with him now, you have nothing to dread if he does get to the top before you do.
